The Dual Vision Robert Gorman, 2013-10-08 This study originally published in 1977 focuses on a critical examination of the life work of Alfred Schutz the most important and influential father of several recent schools of empirical social research The author shows why Shutz and his followers fail in their attempts to humanize empirical social science The problems they encounter he argues are due to their attempt to achieve a methodological synthesis of self determining subjectivity and empirical criteria of validation based on Schutz s heuristic adoption of relevant ideas from Weber and Husserl This is in effect an artificial union of subjectivity and objectivity their dual vision that satisfies neither phenomenological nor naturalist perspectives Dr Gorman suggests that the radical implications of phenomenology must lead to a consistent socially conscious method of inquiry and in a final chapter he re defines the methodological implications of phenomenology with the aid of existential and Marxist categories
