Children's Spatial Development:

Children's Spatial Development John Eliot, Neil J. Salkind, 1974      Knowledge under Construction Daniel Ness, Stephen J. Farenga, 2007-03-26 Knowledge under Construction investigates how young children develop spatial geometric and scientific thinking skills particularly those associated with architecture Based on original research and analysis of videotapes of children's play with blocks the authors findings suggest that such play is anything but pointless Their conclusions fill in gaps in our current understanding of how children learn to think spatially and scientifically even while challenging portions of that understanding including some of Piaget's thesis about the primacy of topological space in children's learning A system of measurement developed to identify and categorize children's spontaneous behavior at play allows adults to observe patterns of behavior as children play and record the development of process skills and cognitive abilities enhancing our understanding of how children begin to learn about space and architectural relationships The book also examines the educational implications of our enhanced understanding One possible development is a new alternative way to measure cognitive abilities and development in children based on their work with blocks      Advances in Child Development and Behavior, 2024-09-11 Advances in Child Development and Behavior Volume 67 the latest release in this classic resource on the field of developmental psychology includes a variety of timely updates with this new volume presenting interesting chapters on topics such as Conceptual and Empirical Advances in Afterschool Research Unraveling the Transracial Adoption Paradox Construction race and racism in adoptive families Risk and Resilience Models in Child Development The Dual Journey The Development of Twins Relationships Throughout Childhood A sociocultural perspective of multimodal learning by infants and young children and Defining the Role of Executive Function in Children's Sociomoral Reasoning Contains chapters that highlight some of the most recent research in the area of child development and behavior Presents a high quality and wide range of topics covered by well known professionals      Handbook of Spatial Research Paradigms and Methodologies: Spatial cognition in the child and adult Nigel Foreman, Raphael Gillett, 1997 Part of a two volume handbook reviewing the major paradigms used in each of the contributors research areas of spatial cognition      Multidisciplinary Approaches to Understanding Early Development of Spatial Skills: Advances in Linguistic, Behavioral, and Neuroimaging studies Hui Li, Jin Sun, Xiao Zhang, 2021-06-04      The Ontogenetic Development of Literal and Metaphorical Space in Language Eva-Maria Graf, 2006      Empirical Research at a Distance: New Methods for Developmental Science Dima Amso, Rhodri Cusack, Lisa Oakes, Sho Tsuji, Natasha Kirkham, 2022-06-15      Personal Space Rules Xena Mindhurst, AI, 2025-01-24 Personal Space Rules delves into the fascinating world of human spatial behavior exploring how different cultures establish and navigate personal boundaries during social interactions Through a comprehensive analysis of proxemics haptic communication and cultural spatial norms across 42 cultures the book reveals how our invisible boundaries are shaped by both biological instincts and cultural conditioning This research backed exploration demonstrates that personal space rules aren't arbitrary but rather systematic cultural constructions reflecting deeper social values. The book uniquely combines traditional anthropological observations with modern scientific tools, presenting a three-part journey through the subject matter. It begins by examining the biological and psychological foundations of personal space, including the role of the amygdala in processing spatial threats. The narrative then expands into cultural variations, contrasting high-contact societies in Latin America with low-contact cultures in Northern Europe, before culminating in practical applications for urban design, workplace architecture, and diplomatic relations. Drawing from five decades of research, including Edward T. Hall's groundbreaking work on proxemics, this interdisciplinary study bridges psychology, anthropology, and architecture. The book stands out for its accessible presentation of complex concepts through clear examples and case studies, making it valuable for both academic researchers and professionals working in cross-cultural environments. Its examination of contemporary challenges, such as maintaining personal space during health crises and adapting to virtual communication, makes it particularly relevant in today's interconnected world.

How Children Develop Robert S. Siegler, Judy S. DeLoache, Nancy Eisenberg, 2003. An highly anticipated new text for the topically organized child development course, written by three of the field's most accomplished researchers.

Rethinking Linguistic Relativity John J. Gumperz, Stephen C. Levinson, 1996-07-11. Linguistic relativity is the claim that culture through language affects the way in which we think and especially our classification of the experienced world. This book reexamines ideas about linguistic relativity in the light of new evidence and changes in theoretical climate. The editors have provided a substantial introduction that summarizes changes in thinking about the Sapir-Whorf hypothesis in the light of developments in anthropology, linguistics, and cognitive science. Introductions to each section will be of especial use to students.

Cultural-historical Digital Methodology in Early Childhood Settings Marilyn Fleer, Glykeria Fragkiadaki, Elin Eriksen Ødegaard, Prabhat Rai, Alicja R. Sadownik, 2024-07-10. This open access book addresses methodological issues related to researching young children's learning and development, teacher education, and professional development. It pays special attention to research conducted in digital contexts in response to the new societal demands of a global pandemic and crisis. It illustrates and discusses new methods and tools, new study designs, new analysis techniques, and new procedures developed in a time of crisis in two different parts of the world: Australia and Norway. The book suggests that during the global pandemic, a theoretical crisis in researching children's development in different contexts has emerged, which has not only created the need for new methods and methodologies but has opened the space for the development of theory itself. Following a cultural-historical perspective, this book theorises these new approaches to create new theoretical concepts and new ways of researching, better understanding, and efficiently supporting childhoods in a continually changing world. This book is a great resource for researchers and students in the fields of early childhood education and educational psychology.

The Role of Play and Adult Guidance in Children's Spatial Development Sierra Lenore Eisen, 2020. Pragmatics of Space Andreas

H. Jucker, Heiko Hausendorf, 2022-09-20 This handbook provides a comprehensive overview of spatial configurations of language use and of language use in space. It consists of four parts. The first part covers the various practices of describing space through language including spatial references in spoken interaction or in written texts, the description of motion events as well as the creation of imaginative spaces in storytelling. The second part surveys aspects of the spatial organization of face-to-face communication including not only spatial arrangements of small groups in interaction but also the spatial dimension of sign language and gestures. The third part is devoted to the communicative resources of constructed spaces and the ways in which these facilitate and shape communication. Part four finally is devoted to pragmatics across space and cultures, i.e. the ways in which language use differs across language varieties, languages and cultures. Children's Conceptions of Spatial Relationships Robert Cohen, 1982 Developmental Change in Children's Analysis of Spatial Patterns Wendy L. Tada, 1990 Growth and Development of the Young Child Winifred Rand, Mary E. Sweeny, Elizabeth Lee Vincent, 1930 The Child in the Physical Environment Christopher Spencer, Mark Blades, Kim Morsley, 1989-04-24 Presents a developmental approach to children and their understanding of space and spatial relationships. Traces development from the earliest concepts of the self in space through the location of objects to movement through the immediate area, route and landmark learning and the development of images of distant places. Also covers applied topics, includes a detailed chapter on the special problems of blind children and techniques for working with them. Child Development Abstracts and Bibliography, 1928 The Pedagogical Seminary, 1928 Vols 5-15 include Bibliography of child study by Louis N. Wilson Children's Range Behaviour Christine E. Parkinson, 1987
