China's Economic Development, 1950-2014 Chu-yuan Cheng, 2014-09-26

China's Economic Development 1950-2014: Fundamental Changes and Long-Term Prospects is a comprehensive and up-to-date analysis of Chinese economic development from 1950-2014, focusing on current world-wide attention to the economic reform. Chu-yuan Cheng covers a wide range of topics including the cultural effects and ideological influences on China's economic development, the process of China's transition from a planned to a market economy, leadership changes and the root of the Cultural Revolution, the machine-building industry and scientific and engineering manpower in China, China's new development plans in the twenty-first century and the process and consequence of the Quiet Revolution, the international economic relations including the U.S.-China, Sino-Japanese economic relations and access to WTO economic relations across the Taiwan Strait and the formation of the Greater China Economic Sphere and the long-term development prospect of the Chinese economy in the twenty-first century and beyond.

China's Economic Modernisation And Structural Changes: Essays In Honour Of John Wong Yongnian Zheng, Sarah Yueting Tong, 2019-03-05

This book provides a timely update on the ongoing transformation of the Chinese economy. As the world's second largest economy, China marked the 40th anniversary of economic reform and opening up in 2018. In this book, top scholars on Chinese economic studies review China's remarkable economic achievement in the past four decades and analyse the challenges facing economic development in the country. The book focusses on structural changes of China's economy which are essential to steer the country towards sustainable development. It studies the long-term factors affecting the Chinese economy such as education and innovation and emerging sources of economic growth such as e-commerce. Other important aspects of the Chinese economy explored in this book include the economic role of the Chinese government, fiscal reforms, capital account liberalisation, housing policies, competition policy and anti-monopoly law, China's export trends, regional development and reforms of state-owned enterprises. This rich collection of policy-oriented economic studies is also a tribute to Professor John Wong, former research director of the East Asian Institute, National University of Singapore, who passed away in June 2018. For over three decades, Professor Wong had followed and provided insightful analyses on China's economic development.

The Rise of China and Structural Changes in Korea and Asia Takatoshi Ito,Chin Hee Hahn,2010-01-01 This book brings together studies conducted by researchers in East Asian countries who seek to better understand the impact of China's rise and the consequent policy challenges. The expert contributors illustrate that the rise of China and its integration with the rest of the world is one of the most important developments in the global economy. Over the past thirty years or so, China's economy has grown at nearly ten percent per annum with the expansion of the modern export-oriented industrial sector to become the third largest economy in the world and the second largest in trade. This book reviews the economic growth of East Asian countries since the 1990s and the various impacts that the rise of China has had on these countries. In particular, it addresses policy challenges faced in coping with the rise of China and maintaining economic growth. This timely book will strongly appeal to academics and researchers focusing on East Asia and China as well as those interested in international trade, development, and economic growth.

Economic Growth and Structural Change in Taiwan Walter Galenson, 1979. Monographic compilation of essays on the economic development of Taiwan. China analyses changes in economic structure, economic growth, and agricultural development trends; industrial development; fiscal policy and monetary policy; foreign trade policy; labour force; wages; standard of living; trade unionism; government policy and economic policy. Graphs, references, and statistical tables.

Structural Change and Economic Development in China and India Donatella Saccone, Vittorio Valli, 2009. The comparison of the periods of rapid economic growth in China since 1978 and India since 1992 markedly show different patterns of development and structural change. However, both countries experienced some of the advantages of relative economic backwardness and some aspects of the Fordist model of growth. China had an anticipated and deeper structural change spurred mainly by economic reforms and the growth of the internal market in the 1980s and since the mid-1990s by a very rapid penetration of its industrial products in the world market. However, a substantial part of its exports in medium and high-tech sectors are due to joint ventures with foreign multinationals. India had a more balanced structural change and a slower insertion in the world market, although some sectors such as software, steel, automotive, and pharmaceuticals are recently increasing their share in the world markets.

The Synergy Theory on Economic Growth: Comparative Study Between China and Developed Countries Jianhua Liu, Zhaohua Jiang, 2018-09-21. The book constructs the Synergy Theory, a new theory of economic growth and calculation methodology. The book involves empirical comparative study on economic growth between China and the 14 developed countries and, on the basis of the synergy theory, divides GDP into labor compensation, capital income, and synergistic benefits. Further, it establishes the new empirical model, including the major determined factors of economic growth such as growth of physical capital stock, growth of investment in physical capital, improvement of science and technology, improvement of human capital quality, labor force growth, institutional innovation, and economic externalities. Subsequently, it uses the method of Data Envelopment Analysis to calculate the contribution of institutional innovation to economic growth and it also focuses on the analysis of the determining factors of economic growth. Based on the analysis above, the new theory has been tested, and the countermeasures and suggestions involving China's innovation driven economy have been proposed China's Economic Development and the Role of Foreign-funded Enterprises, 2003 China's Economic Modernisation and Structural Changes Jessica Loon, 2019

How China Grows James Riedel, Jing Jin, Jian Gao, 2023-06-06 Why investment and financial reform are essential to China's continued economic well being Although China's economy has grown spectacularly over the last twenty five years economists disagree about how the Chinese economy is likely to fare in the short and long term future Is China's growth sustainable or has China relied too much on investment which is subject to diminishing returns and not enough on technological change The first book on the relation between investment finance and growth in China How China Grows dismisses this concern James Riedel Jing Jin and Jian Gao argue that investment has not only been the engine of growth but also the main source of technological progress and structural change in China What threatens future growth instead the authors argue are the weaknesses of China's financial system that undermine efficiency in investment allocation Financial sector reform and development are necessary not only for sustaining long term growth but also for maintaining macroeconomic stability Although it includes some technical economic analysis How China Grows is accessible to noneconomists and will benefit anyone who is interested in development finance in general and in China's economic growth in particular whether economists political scientists bankers or business people Growth and Structural Transformation Kwang Suk Kim, Michael Roemer, 1979 This study provides a comprehensive overview of Korea's macroeconomic growth and structural change since World War II The authors explore in detail colonial development changing national income patterns relative price shifts sources of aggregate growth and sources of sectoral structural change comparing them with other countries
