Contested values and climate change mitigation in Central Kalimantan, Indonesia

Abstract

Climate change mitigation pilot projects (REDD+ – Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and forest Degradation) affect and interact with the local population in Central Kalimantan and many other parts of Indonesia. Rather than being politically and economically neutral activities, climate change mitigation projects tend to objectify the value of carbon, land and labour, contributing to a process of commodification of nature and social relations. In this specific case study, a set of values – equality and autonomy – central to the Ngaju people, the indigenous population in Central Kalimantan, become contested in the course of the climate change mitigation project. These central values are produced in everyday activities that include mobility and the productive base – subsistence and market-based production – among the Ngaju people. On the other hand, the climate change mitigation project-related environmental practices and actions produce values that point to individual (material) benefit and stratification of the society. The aim of the paper is to draw attention to and create understanding of value production and related tensions in the efforts to ‘fix’ environmental degradation problems through the climate change mitigation pilot project in Central Kalimantan.

Key words values, agency, politics, climate change mitigation, Indonesia

Introduction

This paper explores value orientations as they became contested and produced during a dispute over a climate change mitigation project in Central Kalimantan in 2012–13. In 2007, the Kalimantan Forests and Climate Partnership (KFCP), a REDD+ climate change mitigation pilot project (Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and forest Degradation)¹ designed to rehabilitate the peatlands in the area and thus reduce carbon emissions, was granted $100 million by the Australian Government to reforest 70,000 hectares of peat lands, re-flood 200,000 hectares of peat swamp landscape drained by the ¹ REDD+ is a UN-initiated programme aiming to reduce emissions from deforestation and forest degradation through forest conservation (<http://www.un-redd.org/how-we-work> Accessed 19 April 2017). For more detailed research on REDD+, see Angelsen and McNeill (2012) and Angelsen et al. (2012). For more on REDD+ in Indonesia, see Resosudarmo et al. (2014) and Howell (2013, 2014).

Michael Timpane,Roger W. Benjamin,2000 Why do America s public schools seem unable to meet today s social challenges As competing interest groups vie over issues like funding and curricula we seem to have lost sight of the democratic purposes originally intended for public education Public schools were envisioned by the Founders as democratically run institutions for instilling civic values but today s education system seems more concerned with producing good employees than good citizens Meanwhile our country s diversity has eroded consensus about citizenship and the professionalization of educators has diminished public involvement in schools This volume seeks to demonstrate that the democratic purposes of education are not outmoded ideas but can continue to be driving forces in public education Nine original articles by some of today s leading education theorists cut a broad swath across the political spectrum to examine how those democratic purposes might be redefined and revived It both establishes the intellectual foundation for revitalizing American schools and offers concrete ideas for how the educational process can be made more democratic The authors make a case for better empirical research about the politics of education in order to both reconnect schools to their communities and help educators instill citizenship An initial series of articles reexamines the original premise of American education as articulated by important thinkers like Jefferson and Dewey A second group identifies flaws in how schools are currently governed and offers models for change A final section analyzes the value conflicts posed by the twin strands of democratic socialization and governance and their implications for education policy Spanning philosophy history sociology and political science this book brings together the best current thinking about the specifics of education policy vouchers charter schools national testing and about the role of deliberation in a democracy It offers a cogent alternative to the exchange paradigm and shows how much more needs to be understood about an issue so vital to America s future
