Printing and Bookbinding for Schools Samuel Jesse Vaughn,1912      Bookbinding for Schools. A Text Book for Teachers and Students ... James Samuel Hewitt Bates,1941      Printing and Bookbinding for Schools Samuel Jesse Vaughn,1919      Printing and Bookbinding for Schools S. J. Vaughn,2015-06-24 Excerpt from Printing and Bookbinding for Schools Woodwork has been quite generally introduced into the high school and grammar school With all the defects of the earlier presentation of the subject not to speak of those in later efforts it has made a surprisingly general appeal and has met with unusual and deserved success Some of the methods employed tending to place a ban on originality and thought have brought it far short of its possibilities in the aid of intellectual development To a considerable extent the woodwork has not touched as intimately as it might the vital interests of the pupils and of the homes and by its own limitations it has not had an especially strong social bearing The need is not less woodwork but more original and thoughtful woodwork and also a greater variety of other constructive work which touches more and wider interests and which may appeal to those not particularly adapted to that one line In this way it will be possible to strengthen the places where woodwork is weak So far experience with printing in school indicates that it makes quite as general and permanent an appeal as woodwork Printing makes this very strong appeal to the boys because in the first place the printshop comes as near to reproducing a great world industry in the school as any other line of industrial work Instead of doing simply the roustabout work of the beginning apprentice the boys are put to work with the regular shop equipment and soon are ready to begin turning out some printing It is a common thing to hear a boy remark This is just the way they do it down town About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Bookbinding in Schools Herbert Hirst,1921      Bookbinding for Schools. Bookbinding. (Sixth Edition.). James Samuel Hewitt BATES,1954      Printing and Bookbinding for Schools \(Classic Reprint\) S. J. Vaughn,2017-12-22 Excerpt from Printing and Bookbinding for Schools Besides this there is probably no other line of Manual Arts work in which pupils grade boys especially get so practical a working knowledge of the actual shop work as in printing This fact is often turned to good advantage by the boys for there can scarcely be found a commercial printshop anywhere which is not glad to employ one or two boys during vacation time if they know a little about the work and are interested About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving

Halliday,2015-08-04 Excerpt from Bookbinding as a Handwork Subject Being a Full Explanation of How Books Can Be Bound With Simple Apparatus in a School Classroom As a firm believer in the educative power of handicraft it is a true pleasure to find that Mr Halliday has in his Handbook of Bookbinding supplied what so far as I know has been a real want He has not only written clearly and concisely but he has admirably illustrated the instruction he gives He has gone carefully into the prices of tools and materials and has shown that the work of bookbinding can be graded for the various standards of children which may take up the occupation under their school teacher s supervision It is a great matter that nearly all the apparatus can be made by the pupils themselves and the interest of the processes is ensured by the appeal which the work makes not to one sense only but to many senses It appeals to craft of hand It appeals to the delight of the eye and not least to the creative sense that is astonished at the result and the usefulness of its labour Last but not least the art of bookbinding is one that can be learned and practised by girls as well as by boys and it will be found that having once learned the rudiments it is a pleasant fireside occupation for long evenings at home which will materially add to the neatness and good order of the household and save much expense at the same time The child who has gone through this course will make its own Christmas cards its own note books its own volumes of stories and its own bindings for papers and magazines I heartily commend this little volume of practical help to teachers and scholars alike About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
