China Difference:

China's Monetary Policy and Interest Rate Liberalization Wei Liao,2014 China has been moving to a more market oriented financial system which has implications for the monetary policy environment The paper investigates the stability of the money demand function MDF in light of progress in financial sector reforms that for example have resulted in significant financial innovation so called shadow banking and more liberalized interest rates The analysis of international experience suggests that rapid development of the financial system often leads to structural shifts in the MDF For example financial innovation and liberalization alter the sensitivity of money balances to income and the interest rate For China we find that the stable long run relationship between money demand output and interest rates that existed between 2002 and 2008 disappears after 2008 This coincides with the period of rapid financial innovation especially the growth in off balance sheet and nonbank financial intermediation The results suggest that usefulness of M2 as an intermediate monetary target has declined with financial innovation and reform A result that underscores the importance of moving toward increased reliance on more price based targets such as interest rates
