China Observed:

The Evolution of Agricultural Credit during China's Republican Era, 1912-1949 Hong Fu, Calum G.

Turvey, 2018-05-30 In the modern era China's rural credit landscape is transforming at a dizzying rate but in terms of financial development these changes represent a second attempt in the past 100 years to reform China's credit institutions and provide credit access to farmers. The first period was during the Republican era between 1912 and 1949 which saw the first attempts at formalizing rural credit with the Industrial and Agricultural Banks. This book uses primary data and papers to present a full picture of the difficult conditions China faced during the Republican era in order to explain the myriad reforms to the country's rural credit system. Fu and Turvey build a narrative around these developments based on the foundation of thousands of years of dynastic rule in order to explore the specific impacts of drought, floods, famine, communist insurgencies, Japanese expansionism, and more on credit access, supply, and demand. They consider powerful personalities such as J. B. Taylor, John Lossing Buck, Paul Hsu, and Timothy Richards, and influential institutions from Nanking and Nankai Universities to the China International Famine Relief Commission that sought ways to end the cycle that trapped the vast majority of Chinese farmers in poverty. This rich, wide-ranging, and stimulating work will appeal both to readers focused on present-day China and those who want to understand China's rural economy and credit policies in a historical context.

China Observed Colin Mackerras, Neale Hunter, 1968 Study of sociological aspects of contemporary China with particular reference to social change covers urban areas and rural areas, social structures, living conditions, family life, the role of women, social participation in community development, tradition, cultural factors, political party activities, the role of political leadership, etc.

Peak Oil, Climate Change, and the Limits to China's Economic Growth Minqi Li, 2014-02-24 This book studies the limits imposed by the depletion of fossil fuels and the requirements of climate stabilization on economic growth, with a focus on China. The book intends to examine the potentials of various energy resources, including oil, natural gas, coal, nuclear, wind, solar, and other renewables, as well as energy efficiency. Unlike many other books on the subject, this book intends to argue that despite the large potentials of renewable energies and energy efficiency, economic growth eventually will have to be brought to an end as China and the world undertake the transition from fossil fuels to renewable energies. China has overtaken the US to become the world's largest energy consumer and greenhouse gas emitter. Their energy consumption is dominated by coal and China now accounts for one quarter of the world's total carbon dioxide emissions. Moreover, China is set to become the world's largest oil importer in the next decade. This book will consider energy development in the broader context of economic and social changes, especially the historical dynamics of the capitalist world system. Historical lessons of capitalism and socialism will be discussed. The book will evaluate the implications of ecological limits to growth on the economic system and argue that the existing capitalist system is fundamentally incompatible with ecological sustainability.

The Pacific Islands in China's Grand Strategy J. Yang, 2011-11-07. This book looks at Chinese policy towards the South Pacific in the context of China's grand strategy. Analysts are divided on the implications of China's deepening involvement in the region and the study of Chinese involvement in the South Pacific is a part of the great debate on the rise of China.

Metamorphosis of Buddhism in China's New Era David L. Wank, Ji Zhe, Yoshiko Ashiwa, 2025-07-10. The metamorphosis of Buddhism synchronizing with alterations in political ideology, rapid economic growth, and evolving societal demands in China's new era is the focus of this book. It traces the metamorphosis to 2002 when the Communist Party of China declared upholding traditional Chinese culture, including Buddhism, to be essential to its leadership. The chapters offer rich case studies of updated authentic Buddhist teachings by clerics and other innovations in temples and nunneries, new lay communities, and their practices, and the emergence of Buddhist cultural sites ranging from scenic areas to mega expos. The comprehensive view of Buddhism in China illustrates how Buddhism is going beyond state-imposed boundaries of religious space. With a primary focus on Mahayana Buddhism practiced among Han Chinese, it also considers interactions with Theravada and Tibetan Buddhism, as well as Confucianism, Daoism, and folk beliefs. The eleven contributing scholars, experts in anthropology, history, philosophy, religious studies, and sociology, draw on extensive fieldwork to provide transdisciplinary analyses of the metamorphosis, raising key questions about the dynamics of religious space.
