Communication and Conflict Transformation through Local, Regional, and Global Engagement Peter M. Kellett, Thomas G. Matyók, 2016-12-13

Central to a transformational approach to conflict is the idea that conflicts must be viewed as embedded within broader relational patterns and social and discursive structures and must be addressed as such This implies the need for systemic change at generative levels in order to create genuine transformation at the level of particular conflicts Central also to this book is the idea that the origins of transformation can be momentary or situational small scale or micro level as well as bigger and more systemic or macro level Micro level changes involve shifts and meaningful changes in communication and related patterns that are created in communication between people Such transformative changes can radiate out into more systemic levels and systemic transformative changes can radiate inwards to more micro levels This book engages this transformative framework Within this framework this book pulls together current work that epitomizes and highlights the contribution of communication scholarship and communication centered approaches to conflict transformation in local community regional environmental and global conflicts in various parts of the world The resulting volume presents an engaging mix of scholarly chapters think pieces and experiences from the field of practice The book embraces a wide variety of theoretical and methodological approaches as well as transformative techniques and processes including narrative dialogic critical cultural linguistic conversation analytic discourse analytic and rhetorical This book makes a valuable contribution to the ongoing dialogue across and between disciplines and people on how to transform

Contested Identities: Racial Indeterminacy and Law in the American Novel, 1900-1942 Rebecca S Nisetich, 2014
In Contested Identities I chart the path of the legal and literary discourses on racial identity codified by the 1896 Plessy v Ferguson decision and culturally ascendant in the early decades of the twentieth century In this period a group of American writers produced fiction that implicitly challenged this legal and cultural discourse My project explores the literary productions of Charles W Chesnutt Nella Larsen and William Faulkner three writers who undermine question and critique the legal and social practices that seek to define and contain individual identities in binary terms Specifically in Contested Identities I explore why Chesnutt Larsen and Faulkner create characters whose identities are not clearly articulated defined or knowable and why they intentionally position these figures in relation to the law At the center of each of these texts there remains a void where racial information might be clearly articulated defined or corroborated but isn't This enables Chesnutt Larsen and Faulkner to underscore an unresolved tension between what must be true and what cannot be known a dynamic which throws into relief the maddening complexity of human experience in opposition to cut and dry legal and popular definitions of race which operate under the assumption that blood proportions are easily known and that specific blood proportions determine identity I argue that it is racial indeterminacy that animates these writers explorations of identity and that it is the fundamental theme that binds these characters and texts together The law treats race as a matter of identity my dissertation argues that the law is instead a crucial factor in the formation of the racial identity of individual characters
