Lifespan Development of Human Memory Peter Graf (PhD.),Nobuo Ohta,2002 An original approach to memory

development that views memory as a continuous process of growth and loss over the human lifespan rather than as a series of separate periods. Until recently the vast majority of memory research used only university students and other young adults as subjects. Although such research successfully introduced new methodologies and theoretical concepts it created a bias in our understanding of the lifespan development of memory. This book signals a departure from young adult centered research. It views the lifespan development of memory as a continuous process of growth and loss where each phase of development raises unique questions favoring distinct research methods and theoretical approaches. Drawing on a broad range of investigative strategies the book lays the foundation for a comprehensive understanding of the lifespan development of human memory. Topics include the childhood and adulthood development of working memory, episodic and autobiographical memory and prospective memory as well as the breakdown of memory functions in Alzheimer's disease. Of particular interest is the rich diversity of approaches, methods and theories. The book takes an interdisciplinary perspective drawing on work from psychology, psychiatry, gerontology and biochemistry.

Narrative Development Michael Bamberg, 2012-11-12. Growing out of an International Society of the Study of Behavioral Development sponsored symposium this book discusses the basic assumptions that led the contributors to conduct research in the field of narrative development. This collection gathers their research reflections and varying approaches to narrative and its development. It illustrates each type of approach and highlights their respective motives. The book presents some of the basic motivating assumptions of each approach and provides insight into what holds each set of assumptions together potentially transforming them into actions. This book will serve as an excellent text for courses emphasizing multiple approaches to the study of narrative. The editor has organized this volume in accordance with the six main points of the symposium: Specification of the Domain: how narratives are defined in terms of textual structures, knowledge thereof, interactive moves, sociocultural conventions and the like; The Individual's Involvement in the Developmental Process: the relationship between some internal or external forces and the organism's own active participation in the developmental process; The Course of Development: if it is continuous or discontinuous, whether it proceeds in an additive fashion or whether regressive phases occur and what changes at different points in the developmental process; signify The Goal of Development: the implicit notion of a telos, a target or end point that needs to occur in the developmental process; Mechanisms of Development: the forces and/or conditions that both instigate the developmental process and keep it moving toward its telos; Methodology: where and how to look in the establishment of a developmental framework. This book is an indispensable text in the fields of narrative and/or discourse linguistics, language studies, psychology and education in general.

Processing interclausal Relationships Jean Costermans, Michel Fayol, 2014-03-18. During the last 10 years more and more linguistic and psycholinguistic research has been devoted to the study of discourse and written texts. Much of this research deals with the markers that underline the connections and the breaks between clauses and sentences plus the use of these markers by adults and children in the production and comprehension of oral and written material In this volume major observations and theoretical views from both sides of the Atlantic are brought together to appeal to a wide range of linguists psychologists and speech therapists The volume presents contributions from researchers interested specifically in adult language and from others concerned with developmental aspects of language Some contributors deal primarily with production whereas others concentrate on comprehension Some direct their attention to oral discourse while others focus on written texts To preserve overall coherence however the contributors were given the following recommendations With regard to the level of linguistic analysis the emphasis should be on the clause level more particularly on the relationships between clauses Special emphasis should also be placed on linguistic markers e g connectives markers of segmentation punctuation An overview of a given field of research should be offered and current research should be put into perspective For contributors in the developmental field attention should be paid to the fact that an account of the acquisition of some language functions throughout childhood should be included only if general principles of interclause relations that might be masked by the exclusive examination of adult evidence could be derived from it
