The Retreat from Race Dana Y. Takagi, 1992 An excellent book Takagi takes a very complex and sensitive subject racial politics and shows through a careful analysis that changes in the discourse about Asian American admissions have facilitated a retreat from race in the area of affirmative action This book will appeal to an audience significantly wider than a typical academic one David Karen Bryn Mawr College Charges by Asian Americans that the top universities in the United States used quotas to limit the enrollment of Asian American students developed into one of the most controversial public controversies in higher education since the Bakke case In Retreat from Race Dana Takagi follows the debates over Asian American admissions at Berkeley UCLA Brown Stanford Harvard and Princeton She explains important developments in the politics of race changes in ethnic coalitions reconstruction of the debate over affirmative action and the conservative challenge to the civil rights agenda of the 1960s Takagi examines the history and significance of the Asian American admissions controversy on American race relations both inside and outside higher education Takagi s central argument is that the Asian American admissions controversy facilitated a subtle but important shift in affirmative action policy away from racial preferences toward class preferences She calls this development a retreat from race Takagi suggests that the retreat signals not only an actual policy shift but also the increasing reluctance on the part of intellectuals politicians and policy analysts to identify and address social problems as explicitly racial problems Moving beyond the university setting Takagi explores the political significance of the retreat from race by linking Asian American admissions to other controversies in higher education and in American politics including the debates over political correctness and multiculturalism In her assessment the retreat from race is likely to fail at its promise of easing racial tension and promoting racial equality
