Cactus Flower:

Cacti Park S. Nobel, 2002-07-10 There is nothing in the world like this book It should be in every library and on the bookshelves of all those interested in cacti The book will be an important resource for plant physiology agronomy and horticulture classes at both the undergraduate and graduate level Bruce Smith Brigham Young University Cacti Biology and Uses is a landmark publication of one of the world's most unique group of plants Park Nobel a leading authority on succulent plants has assembled a collection of contributions that spans a wide range of issues extending from basic systematics anatomy physiology and ecology to considerations of conservation and human uses of this diverse group of plants This nicely produced and well illustrated volume provides a resource that will be of great use to a wide range of scientists practitioners and enthusiasts of this plant group Harold Mooney Paul S Achilles Professor of Environmental Biology Stanford University

Conserving Migratory Pollinators and Nectar Corridors in Western North America Gary Paul Nabhan, 2023-02-07 When migrating birds and other creatures move along a path of plant communities in bloom they follow what has come to be known as a nectar trail Should any of these plants be eliminated from the sequence whether through habitat destruction pests or even aberrant weather the movement of these pollinators may be interrupted and their very survival threatened In recent efforts by ecologists and activists to envision a continental scale network of protected areas connected by wildlife corridors the peculiar roles of migratory pollinators which travel the entire length of this network cannot be underestimated in shaping the ultimate conservation design This book a unique work of comparative zoogeography and conservation biology is the first to bring together studies of these important migratory pollinators and of what we must do to conserve them It considers the similarities and differences among the behavior and habitat requirements of several species of migratory pollinators and seed dispersers in the West primarily rufous hummingbirds white winged doves lesser long nosed bats and monarch butterflies It examines the population dynamics of these four species in flyways that extend from the Pacific Ocean to the continental backbone of the Sierra Madre Oriental and Rocky Mountains and it investigates their foraging and roosting behaviors as they journey from the Tropic of Cancer in western Mexico into the deserts grasslands and thornscrub of the U S Mexico borderlands The four pollinators whose journeys are traced here differ dramatically from one another in foraging strategies and stopover fidelities but all challenge many of the truisms that have emerged regarding the status of migratory species in general The rufous hummingbird makes the longest known avian migration in relation to body size and is a key to identifying nectar corridors running through northwestern Mexico to the United States And there is new evidence to challenge the long supposed separation of eastern and western monarch butterfly populations by the Rocky Mountains as these insects migrate Conserving Migratory Pollinators and Nectar Corridors in Western North America demonstrates new efforts to understand migratory species and to determine whether their densities survival rates and health are changing in response to changes in the distribution and abundance of nectar plants found within their ranges Representing collaborative efforts that bridge field ecology and conservation biology in both theory and practice it is dedicated to safeguarding dynamic interactions among plants and pollinators that are only now being identified Kingdom Women in Today's World Debra Watson,2018-08-01 God inspired me to write about his unfailing love for women who are suffering through life s great trials and personal afflictions Through my own experiences and those close to me I share my personal and spiritual insight in hopes of shedding light knowledge and revelation of how difficult circumstances can produce seeds of greatness in the women of his kingdom a support so desperately needed in today s world My desire is as you read this book is that you will feel enlightened as to why you have faced a challenging circumstance or are currently dealing with one In every hardship every misfortune every calamity the Lord will amaze you with the miracles he has provided along the journey Whether you have suffered or are someone that has helped others along the way you have touched the lives of others and are part of God s great vision for a sisterhood of women who support and love each other in his will Our true beauty as women in Christ is not only in our strength and endurance but also in our ability to nurture and protect one another The Cactus Journal ,1898
