A. P. Martin, 2015-06-25 Excerpt from A Cycle of Cathay Or China South and North With Personal Reminiscences From the prelude to China s first war with England to the present date is roughly speaking about sixty years the length of a Chinese cycle though for all I know Tennyson may have thought of it as a thousand years To this period the following pages principally relate During three fourths of it I was domiciled in China dividing my life between South and North and adding to the experiences of a missionary those of an employee of the Chinese government For two years I served my own country at a critical epoch when the treaties were negotiated which led to the opening of Peking My position in a college closely connected with the Board of Foreign Affairs gave me exceptional opportunities for observing the course of diplomacy in the Chinese capital for nearly thirty years Yet my object is not so much to write a history of events as to exhibit the Chinese as I have seen them in their social and political life To some the personal element will add interest to all I would fain hope it will add confidence Should the volume fall into the hands of any of my old students they will I trust find in it the same sympathetic appreciation of their country and the same candor of criticism which I am sure they have learned to expect About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works A Cycle of Cathay William Alexander Parsons Martin, 1897 A Cycle of Cathay; Or China, South and North W.
