Efficiencies of Slowness Rachel Anderson-Rabel, 2011 This project focuses on the process and performance of three contemporary collective creation groups Goat Island Elevator Repair Service and Nature Theater of Oklahoma I draw processual and aesthetic connections between collective creation methodologies and the consequences of those methodologies in performance claiming that processes leave footprints that are ultimately visible to audiences though their visibility requires new ways of seeing Taking into account an American genealogy of collective creation I outline the footprints of method through the images of everyday employment instances of untrained bodies enacting danced gesture and the speeds and velocities that characterize the work of these three contemporary groups Through these aesthetics we can locate evidence of methodological principles that constitute a politics In the work of Goat

Island Elevator Repair Service and Nature Theater of Oklahoma this politics does not play out through the ideological content of performance but is embedded within collaborative acts of making Postdramatic Theatre and India Ashis Sengupta,2022-01-27 This book revisits Hans Thies Lehmann s theory of the postdramatic and participates in the ongoing debate on the theatre paradigm by placing contemporary Indian performance within it None of the Indian theatre makers under study built their works directly on the Euro American model of postdramatic theatre but many have used its vocabulary and apparatus in innovative transnational ways Their principal aim was to invigorate the language of Indian urban theatre which had turned stale under the stronghold of realism inherited from colonial stage practice or prescriptive under the decolonizing drive of the theatre of roots movement after independence Emerging out of a set of different historical and cultural contexts their productions have eventually expanded and diversified the postdramatic framework by crosspollinating it with regional performance forms Theatre in India today includes devised performance storytelling across forms theatre solos cross media performance theatre installations scenographic theatre theatre as event reality theatre and so on The book balances theory context and praxis developing a new area of scholarship in Indian theatre Interspersed throughout are Indian theatre makers clarifications of their own practices vis vis those in Europe and the US Directing Young People in Theatre Samantha Lane,2017-09-16 This book guides readers in taking a play from page to stage with young people Advice from professional theatre directors including Richard Eyre and Indu Rubasingham is combined with practical games and exercises to help both experienced and first time directors create a play with young actors Music and/as Process Vanessa Hawes,Lauren Redhead,2016-08-17 Music and as Process brings together ideas about music and the notion of process from different sub fields within musicology and from related fields in the creative arts as a whole These can be loosely categorised into three broad areas composition performance and analysis but work in all three of these groups in the volume overlaps into the others covers a broad range of other musicological sub fields and draws inspiration from non musicological fields Music and as Process comprises chapters written by a mix of scholars some are leaders in their field and some are newer researchers but all share an innovative and forward thinking attitude to music research often not well represented within traditional musicology Much of the work represented here started as papers or discussions at one of the Royal Musical Association RMA Music and as Process Study Group Annual Conferences The first section of the book deals with the analysis of performance and the performance of analysis The historical nature of music and the recognition of pieces as musical works in the traditional sense is questioned by the authors and is a factor in the analyses which address processes in composing performing and listening and the links between these in three very different but interlinking ways These three approaches posit new directions and territory for musical analysis The second section builds on the first framing performance and as process from the individual perspectives of the authors and their experiences as practitioners Music by Berio de Falla music by the authors and their collaborators and music composed for the authors are explored through looking at processes of interpretation and risk processes which further undermine the ontology of the musical work as traditionally understood and bring the practitioner as active agent to the foreground of an examination of musical discourse The third section encounters and questions the musical work at its inception exploring composition and as process through its encounters with performance analysis collaboration improvisation translation experimentation and cross disciplinarity Through explorations of new music the way in which practitioners relate to music frame a personal and reflective account of the creative process finally looking beyond music to musicology

Sound, Music and the Moving-Thinking Body Osvaldo Glieda, Marilyn Wyers, 2014-07-08 It has long been known that practicing musicians and dancers draw upon interdisciplinary relationships between sound and movement to inform their work and that many performance arts educators apply these relationships in working with aspiring composers choreographers and performers However most material on the subject has been to this point relegated to single chapters in books and journal articles Now Sound Music and the Moving Thinking Body brings together the diverse topics researchers and practitioners across the sector are exploring and raises issues concerning the collaborative aspects of creating and performing new work Sound Music and the Moving Thinking Body is a result of the Composer Choreographer and Performer Collaboration Conference of Contemporary Music and Dance Movement 2012 hosted by the Institute of Musical Research Senate House University of London and the Department of Music at Goldsmiths University of London
