An Enchantment of Digital Archaeology Shawn Graham, 2020-07-01 The use of computation in archaeology is a kind of magic a way of heightening the archaeological imagination Agent based modelling allows archaeologists to test the just so stories they tell about the past It requires a formalization of the story so that it can be represented as a simulation researchers are then able to explore the unintended consequences or emergent outcomes of stories about the past Agent based models are one end of a spectrum that at the opposite side ends with video games This volume explores this spectrum in the context of Roman archaeology addressing the strengths weaknesses and opportunities of a formalized approach to computation and archaeogaming

Archaeology and Archaeological Information in the Digital Society ISTO HUVILA,2018-05-15 Archaeology and Archaeological Information in the Digital Society shows how the digitization of archaeological information tools and workflows and their interplay with both old and new non digital practices throughout the archaeological information process affect the outcomes of archaeological work and in the end our general understanding of the human past Whereas most of the literature related to archaeological information work has been based on practical and theoretical considerations within specific areas of archaeology this innovative volume combines and integrates intra and extra disciplinary perspectives to archaeological work looking at archaeology from both the inside and outside With fields studies from museums and society and pioneering new academic research Archaeology and Archaeological Information in the Digital Society will interest archaeologists across the board Archaeology in the Digital Era Graeme Earl, Timothy Sly, Angeliki Chrysanthi, Konstantinos Papadopoulos, Patricia Murrieta-Flores, Iza Romanoska, David Wheatley, 2025-10-01 CAA is the foremost conference on digital archaeology and this volume offers a comprehensive and up to date reference to the state of the art This volume contains a selection of the best papers presented at the 40th Annual Conference of Computer Applications and Quantitative Methods in Archaeology CAA held in Southampton from 26 to 29 March 2012 The papers all written and peer reviewed by experts in the field of digital archaeology explore a multitude of topics to showcase ground breaking technologies and best practice from various archaeological and informatics disciplines with a variety of case studies from all over the world Mobilizing the Past for a Digital Future Derek B. Counts, Erin Walcek Averett, Jody Michael Gordon, 2016 Mobilizing the Past is a collection of 20 articles that explore the use and impact of mobile digital technology in archaeological field practice The detailed case studies present in this volume range from drones in the Andes to iPads at Pompeii digital workflows in the American Southwest and examples of how bespoke DIY and commercial software provide solutions and craft novel challenges for field archaeologists The range of projects and contexts ensures that Mobilizing the Past for a Digital Future is far more than a state of the field manual or technical handbook Instead the contributors embrace the growing spirit of critique present in digital archaeology This critical edge backed by real projects systems and experiences gives the book lasting value as both a glimpse into present practices as well as the anxieties and enthusiasm associated with the most recent generation of mobile digital tools Digital Innovations in European Archaeology Kevin Garstki, 2020-12-10 European archaeologists in the last two decades have worked to integrate a wide range of emerging digital tools to enhance the recording analysis and dissemination of archaeological data These techniques have expanded and altered the data collected by archaeologists as well as their interpretations At the same time archaeologists have expanded the capabilities of using these data on a large scale across platforms regions and time periods utilising new and existing digital research infrastructures to enhance the scale of data used for archaeological interpretations This Element discusses some of the most recent innovative uses of these techniques in European archaeology at different stages of archaeological work In addition to providing an overview of some of these techniques it critically assesses these approaches and outlines the recent challenges to the discipline posed by self reflexive use of these tools and advocacy for their open use in cultural heritage preservation and public engagement Digital Archaeology Tuna Kalaycı, Karsten Lambers, Victor Klinkenberg, 2023-11-23 Archaeology has gone digital for some time now Topics such as GIS databases 3D models drone photography meta and para data semantic mapping text mining simulation and social network analysis have become commonplace in archaeological discourse and practice Digital and technological advancements seemingly offer limitless promises for data recording analysis and dissemination Yet after several decades of innovation we must ask ourselves which of these promises are actually fulfilled and which persistent impasses are present Today some reflexive questions are more important than ever In particular when how and why do our innovative archaeology tools fail Do we approach our archaeological projects with a digital wand and implicitly or explicitly expect a magical solution And when there is indeed a digital solution at what expense does it come In this volume scholars and practitioners in the field discuss the state of the art as well as the promises and impasses that digital approaches to archaeology entail The authors discuss the current state of teaching digital archaeology the societal impact of digital innovations current issues in archaeological data management promises and limitations of isotopic research and remote sensing techniques and why subfields such as agent based modeling and serious gaming struggle to keep momentum

Digital Methods and Remote Sensing in Archaeology Maurizio Forte, Stefano Campana, 2017-02-10 This volume debuts the new scope of Remote Sensing which was first defined as the analysis of data collected by sensors that were not in physical contact with the objects under investigation using cameras scanners and radar systems operating from spaceborne or airborne platforms A wider characterization is now possible Remote Sensing can be any non destructive approach to viewing the buried and nominally invisible evidence of past activity Spaceborne and airborne sensors now supplemented by laser scanning are united using ground based geophysical instruments and undersea remote sensing as well as other non invasive techniques such as surface collection or field walking survey Now any method that enables observation of evidence on or beneath the surface of the earth without impact on the surviving stratigraphy is legitimately within the realm of Remote Sensing The new interfaces and senses engaged in Remote Sensing appear throughout the book On a philosophical level this is about the landscapes and built environments that reveal history through place and time It is about new perspectives the views of history possible with Remote Sensing and fostered in part by immersive interactive 3D and 4D environments discussed in this volume These perspectives are both the result and the implementation of technological cultural and epistemological advances in record keeping interpretation and conceptualization Methodology presented here builds on the current ease and speed in collecting data sets on the scale of the object site locality and landscape As this volume shows many disciplines surrounding archaeology and related cultural studies are currently involved in Remote Sensing and its relevance will only increase as the methodology expands
