Talking About Nothing Jody Azzouni, 2010-09-30 Ordinary language and scientific language enable us to speak about in a singular way using demonstratives and names what we recognize not to exist fictions the contents of our hallucinations abstract objects and various idealized but nonexistent objects that our scientific theories are often couched in terms of Indeed references to such nonexistent items especially in the case of the application of mathematics to the sciences are indispensable We cannot avoid talking about such things Scientific and ordinary languages thus enable us to say things about Pegasus or about hallucinated objects that are true or false such as Pegasus was believed by the ancient Greeks to be a flying horse or That elf I m now hallucinating over there is wearing blue shoes Standard contemporary metaphysical views and semantic analyses of singular idioms on offer in contemporary philosophy of language have not successfully accommodated these routine practices of saying true and false things about the nonexistent while simultaneously honoring the insight that such things do not exist in any way at all and have no properties That is philosophers often feel driven to claim that such objects do exist or they claim that all our talk isn't genuine truth apt talk but only pretence This book reconfigures metaphysics and the role of metaphysics in semantics in radical ways that allow the accommodation of our ordinary ways of speaking of what does not exist while retaining the absolutely crucial presupposition that such objects exist in no way at all have no properties and so are not the truth makers for the truths and falsities that are about them

Truth in Fiction John Woods, 2018-02-23 This monograph examines truth in fiction by applying the techniques of a naturalized logic of human cognitive practices The author structures his project around two focal questions What would it take to write a book about truth in literary discourse with reasonable promise of getting it right What would it take to write a book about truth in fiction as true to the facts of lived literary experience as objectivity allows It is argued that the most semantically distinctive feature of the sentences of fiction is that they are unambiguously true and false together It is true that Sherlock Holmes lived at 221B Baker Street and also concurrently false that he did A second distinctive feature of fiction is that the reader at large knows of this inconsistency and isn't in the least cognitively molested by it Why it is asked would this be so What would explain it Two answers are developed According to the no contradiction thesis the semantically tangled sentences of fiction are indeed logically inconsistent but not logically contradictory According to the no bother thesis if the inconsistencies of fiction were contradictory a properly contrived logic for the rational management of inconsistency would explain why readers at large are not thrown off cognitive stride by their embrace of those contradictions As developed here the account of fiction suggests the presence of an underlying three or four valued dialethic logic The author shows this to be a mistaken impression There are only two truth values in his logic of fiction The naturalized logic of Truth in Fiction jettisons some of the standard assumptions and analytical tools of contemporary philosophy chiefly because the neurotypical linguistic and cognitive behaviour of humanity at large is at variance with them Using the resources of a causal response epistemology in tandem with the naturalized logic the theory produced here is data driven empirically sensitive and open to a circumspect collaboration with the empirical sciences of language and cognition The Harvard Review of Philosophy ,2005 Oxford Studies in Metaphysics Dean W.
