The Administrator Takes a Look at the Reading Program Work Conference for Administrators, Uvalde, 1952, 1952 Administration and Supervision of the Reading/writing Program Marguerite C. Radencich, 1995 This practical up to date guide to effectively managing the many facets of a reading writing program helps school based administrators and district supervisors deal with the increasing demands they face daily. From creating a literacy philosophy to developing a multidimensional assessment program the book touches on virtually every major responsibility and issue supervisors and administrators are likely to confront. It addresses the specific needs of the district role and the school based role as well as the areas pertinent to both. And it includes cutting edge issues such as flexible grouping, censorship, whole language, controversial materials and services for special needs students. The book is complete with practical guidelines, extensive resources and specific examples applicable to elementary, middle and high school programs. Specific procedures for many processes are provided including selecting textbooks and nonprint materials, implementing change, conducting classroom demonstrations and developing staff. Also included are descriptions of key studies and reference literature, sample forms, lists of publishers including those that publish student writing, a text friendliness checklist and resource lists for professionals, parents and students. Teachers' and Administrators' Perceptions of the Achieve Maximum Potential (AMP) Reading System Philip B. Gale, 2012 This qualitative study examined the perceptions that teachers and administrators in one suburban school district in Pennsylvania have about the effect the Achieve Maximum Potential (AMP) Reading System has on improving the reading proficiency of eighth and ninth graders who are enrolled in a reading class. The study also investigated the teachers' perceptions of the AMP Reading System's effect on students' reading confidence. Participants in the study included 11 teachers who taught one or more classes of eighth or ninth grade students in a reading class that utilized the AMP Reading System as the primary instructional program and six administrators of the schools that house reading classes utilizing the AMP Reading System. Participants completed the Teachers or Administrators AMP Reading System Perceptions Survey which consisted of 20 questions measured on a Likert scale and three open ended questions. Following the completion of the survey, seven teachers and three administrators participated in a five question interview. Findings of the study showed that teachers and administrators perceived the AMP Reading System to be an effective method for improving the reading proficiency and reading confidence of students Teachers and administrators likewise believed that the AMP Reading System improved students reading proficiency through the use of seven scientific research based strategies A high level of agreement occurred among participants perceptions that the AMP Reading System improved students reading fluency vocabulary and comprehension Higher levels of agreement were seen in teachers perceptions that the AMP Reading System increased students reading confidence
