Critical Theory And The Literary Canon E. Dean Kolbas,2018-03-09 Kolbas stakes out new territory in assessing the war over literary canon formation a subject that contemporary polemicists have devoted much ink to Throughout this succinct manuscript Kolbas ranges through the sociology and politics of culture aesthetic theory and literary theory to develop his point that texts not only must should be situated in the historical and material conditions of their production but also evaluated for their very real aesthetic content One reason the is an important issue Kolbas contends is that the canon is not simply enclosed in the ivory tower of academia its effects are apparent in a much wider field of cultural production and use He begins by critiquing the conservative humanist and liberal pluralist positions on the canon which either assiduously avoid any sociological explanation of the canon or treat texts as stand ins for particular ideologies Kolbas is sympathetic to the arguments of Bourdieu et al regarding positioning the canon in a wider field of cultural production than the university but argues that theirs are purely sociological explanations of aesthetics i e there is no objective aesthetic content that ignore art s autonomous realm which he argues a la Adorno exists if only problematically Ultimately he argues that critical theory particularly the arguments of Adorno on aesthetics offers the most fruitful path for evaluating the canon despite the approach's clear flaws His vision is a sociological one but one that treats the components of the canon as possessing objective aesthetic content albeit content that shifts in meaning over history

Philosophy and Kafka Brendan Moran, Carlo Salzani, 2013-04-19 The relationship of philosophy with Kafka's oeuvre is complex It has been argued that Kafka's novels and stories defy philosophic extrapolation conversely it has also been suggested that precisely the tendency of Kafka's writings to elude discursive solution is itself a philosophical tendency one that is somehow contributing to a wiser relationship of human beings with language These matters are the focus of the proposed volume on Philosophy and Kafka The proposed collection brings together essays that interrogate the relationship of philosophy and Kafka and offer new and original interpretations The volume obviously cannot claim completeness but it partially does justice to the multiplicity of philosophical issues and philosophical interpretations at stake This variety informs the composition of the volume itself A number of essays focus on specific philosophical commentaries on Kafka's work from Adorno's to Agamben's from Arendt's to Benjamin's from Deleuze and Guattari's to Derrida's A number of essays consider the possible relevance of certain philosophical outlooks for examining Kafka's writings here Kafka's name goes alongside those of Socrates Kant Kierkegaard Nietzsche Wittgenstein Buber Heidegger Blanchot and Levinas Finally a number of essays consider Kafka's writings in terms of a specific philosophical theme such as communication and subjectivity language and meaning knowledge and truth the human animal divide justice and freedom In all contributions to the volume such themes motifs and interpretations arise To varying degrees all essays are concerned with the relationship of literature and philosophy and thus with the philosophical significance of Kafka's writings

Introduction to Sociology Theodor W. Adorno,2002-05-01 Introduction to Sociology distills decades of distinguished work in sociology by one of this century s most influential thinkers in the areas of social theory philosophy aesthetics and music It consists of a course of seventeen lectures given by Theodor W Adorno in May July 1968 the last lecture series before his death in 1969 Captured by tape recorder which Adorno called the fingerprint of the living mind these lectures present a somewhat different and more accessible Adorno from the one who composed the faultlessly articulated and almost forbiddingly perfect prose of the works published in his lifetime Here we can follow Adorno's thought in the process of formation he spoke from brief notes endowed with the spontaneity and energy of the spoken word. The lectures form an ideal introduction to Adorno's work, acclimatizing the reader to the greater density of thought and language of his classic texts. Delivered at the time of the positivist dispute in sociology, Adorno defends the position of the Frankfurt School against criticism from mainstream positivist sociologists. He sets out a conception of sociology as a discipline going beyond the compilation and interpretation of empirical facts, its truth being inseparable from the essential structure of society itself. Adorno sees sociology not as one academic discipline among others but as an overarching discipline that impinges on all aspects of social life. Tracing the history of the discipline and insisting that the historical context is constitutive of sociology itself, Adorno addresses a wide range of topics including the purpose of studying sociology, the relation of sociology and politics, the influence of Saint-Simon, Comte, Durkheim, Weber, Marx, and Freud, the contributions of ethnology and anthropology, the relationship of method to subject matter, the problems of quantitative analysis, the fetishization of science, and the separation of sociology and social philosophy.
