Abstract

These notes were written for a tutorial in JICSLP (Washington, 1992) and are not intended to be a comprehensive survey of the field.

We are concerned with dooD, i.e. deductive object-oriented databases (systems). We briefly review ooD systems (object-oriented database management systems) and deductive database systems (the deductive ones). A main purpose is to try to clarify these concepts. As we shall see, although there is already a conference entitled dooD and a large body of literature on the topic, the meaning of dooD is not yet clear. The issues are not precise and we are still looking forward to the first real implementation of a dooD system. We will try to present the motivations, the main achievements so far, and the open questions.

1 Introduction

Data intensive applications are nowadays currently written using C and SQL. This is a major source of difficulties since these two languages are based on different paradigms. Furthermore, the user interface is often implemented using specific tools and in particular 4th generation languages and yet different environments. Therefore, application programmers have to deal with tables and tuples at the SQL level, pointers and records at the C level, objects, windows or menus at the interface level. The prime goal of deductive object-oriented database systems is to provide a uniform rule-based environment to facilitate the design and maintenance of data intensive applications. The challenge is to improve application programmer's productivity while still guaranteeing reasonable performances. It is not clear that such a goal can be achieved. Also, as we shall see, from a scientific viewpoint, the topic is yet rather ill defined. However, we believe that the research community should participate in the study of these systems: (i) there are indications that such systems will become available and (ii) they raise a number of interesting technical issues.

¹A subtlety in the term dooD is that the first "D" can be understood as deductive or as declarative. In this note, we often think of it as declarative, or in other words, we use "deductive" in a very liberal sense.
