Adaptive Information Processing Jeffrey R. Sampson, 2012-12-06 This book began as a series of lecture notes for a course called Introduction to Adaptive Systems which I developed for undergraduate Computing Science majors at the University of Alberta and first taught in 1973 The objective of the course has been threefold 1 to expose undergraduate computer scientists to a variety of subjects in the theory and application of computation subjects which are too often postponed to the graduate level or never taught at all 2 to provide undergraduates with a background sufficient to make them effective participants in graduate level courses in Automata Theory Biological Information Processing and Artificial Intelligence and 3 to present a personal viewpoint which unifies the apparently diverse aspects of the subject matter covered All of these goals apply equally to this book which is primarily designed for use in a one semester undergraduate computer science course I assume the reader has a general knowledge of computers and programming though not of particular machines or languages His mathematical background should include basic concepts of number systems set theory elementary discrete probability and logic

Artificial Intelligence and Heuristic Programming N. V. Findler, Bernard Meltzer, 1971 Artificial Intelligence F. H. George, 2018-05-15 Originally published in 1986 in order to probe dispute and analyse the role of artificial intelligence in cybernetic thought and information science the author pursues this topic within its philosophical behavioral and neurophysiological contexts while drawing attention to cognitive issues By elucidating the problems and potential associated with knowledge based systems the book emphasized the need to examine artificial intelligence in its own right
