Viking and Ecclesiastical Interactions in the Irish Sea Area from the 9th to 11th Centuries Danica Ramsey-Brimberg, 2024-05-15 Different approaches have been conducted to analyse the interactions of the different belief systems in the early medieval world This book assesses the relationship between clerics and Scandinavian influenced laity in the Irish Sea area through the placement of furnished graves at or near ecclesiastical sites in the ninth through the eleventh centuries Other areas of funerary studies have moved beyond a dichotomy of Christianity and paganism acknowledging that practices can be multifaceted Yet statements regarding Viking Age furnished graves in or near ecclesiastical sites are still not as pervasively open to this line of thinking To bridge this gap this book delves into the historiography and context of the burial practices through multidisciplinary analysis The ecclesiastical sites and furnished graves of the eastern southwest Scotland and northwest England central Isle of Man and western Ireland and Northern Ireland Irish Sea areas are then examined using various sources to understand their contexts and relationships In the final chapters the sites and graves are brought together to identify any trends any unique circumstances that led to local variances and their fit into the larger picture Viking Age furnished graves can be seen as an acceptable variation among an array of burial practices and the relationship between the clergy and laity is far more complex and closely tied than has been portrayed Viking and Ecclesiastical Interactions in the Irish Sea Area from the 9th to 11th Centuries will appeal to students and scholars alike interested in the history of the Vikings in the British Irish Isles and their relationships with ecclesiastical institutions

Critical Discourse Studies and Technology Ian Roderick,2016-06-16 Making a new contribution to the developing field of multimodal critical discourse studies Ian Roderick s book demonstrates how technologies that tend to be widely represented as innovative or as simple pragmatic solutions are always anchored in power relations and are therefore deeply ideological A series of examples analysing technologies such as robotics smart phones or bio medicine their functioning and uses as well as their representations in the media show that these are embedded within discourses that tell us about social and power relations identities and political values The book takes a tour of everyday technologies and how they are represented in different settings A Disney theme park attraction showing how technology has improved family life makes many assumptions about what is natural in terms of interpersonal relations pleasure and satisfaction Advertisements that represent robot workers inform us about the kinds of worker management relations now characterising work places Roderick looks at the way that technologies while often represented as divorced from their production and maintenance as objects of wonder need to be seen within a fabric of social relations that tends to be suppressed from how we see them as part of a wider technological fetishism Engaging with existing theories of technology the book argues that we must take a more interdisciplinary approach to avoid the pitfalls of social constructivism and technological determinism Our experiences of technologies are shaped through the relationship between knowledge practices and institutional forms Transactions of
