The Second Greatest Show on Earth Darcy Ingram,2025-11-14 In 1865 wealthy American expatriate Henry Bergh 1813 1888 chose suddenly to abandon a life of leisure in Europe Returning to his home city of New York he set to work on what soon proved a remarkable accomplishment the establishment of an institutional framework for the animal protection movement in America What makes that accomplishment all the more remarkable Darcy Ingram argues is what brought Bergh to it in the first place Surprisingly it had little to do with animals Through a diverse array of sources The Second Greatest Show on Earth reveals that Bergh s motivation for establishing the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was not an extraordinary compassion for animals but rather his understanding of himself and his place in the world Uniting his authoritarian principles his long thwarted literary and theatrical ambitions and an unfulfilled sense of civic duty the animal protection movement occupied him for the rest of his life In the process the elitist enigmatic and oftentimes irascible ASPCA president became something of a celebrity and proved despite constant ridicule to be an innovative social movement tactician well attuned to the changes that were unfolding around him Grounded in discussions of cultural capital dramaturgy and modernity The Second Greatest Show on Earth presents a striking analysis of motivation leadership and identity in the development of the modern social movement
