The impact of art therapy on mental health and well-being Helena José,Joao Apostolo,Luciano Vitorino,Luis Manuel Mota de Sousa,Martina Giusti,2023-12-22 In 2019 the WHO came out with a scoping review related to the evidence on the role of the arts in improving health and well being In the last yeast in fact literature has recognized the direct and indirect benefits of art in the prevention and promotion of mental and physical health and in the management and treatment of disease Although some countries have made progress in developing policies that make use of the arts to support health and well being many have not yet addressed the opportunities that exist for using the arts to support health and for others policy activities have been time limited Nonetheless the relationship between art and health has existed since the birth of medicine itself and has strongly influenced its history and its evolution Art therapy is the main expression of art in health care The integration of art in traditional health assistance paths sustains the need to have a holistic approach to health wellness and well being both of patients and other stakeholders including caregivers and healthcare professionals Currently the main area of art therapy application is mental health with especially regards to disability both in developmental age and in elderly and both to cognitive and physical impairment and dementia However it is important to remark that mental health does not only refer to mental illness but also to people's emotional psychological and social well-being. These last cases have particularly worsened with the long lockdown periods due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Principles of Computer Systems and Network Management Dinesh Chandra Verma, 2010-01-23 As computer systems and networks have evolved and grown more complex, the role of the IT department in most companies has transformed primarily to ensuring that they continue to operate without disruption. IT spending, as reported by a variety of studies, shows the trend that most of the expenses associated with IT are related to the task of operating and managing installed computer systems and applications. Furthermore, the growth in that expense category is outstripping the expense associated with developing new applications. As a consequence, there is a pressing need in the companies and organizations to find qualified people who can manage the installed base of computer systems and networks. This marks a significant shift from the previous trend in companies where the bulk of the IT department expenses were targeted on development of new computer applications. The shift from developing new applications to managing existing systems is a natural consequence of the maturity of the IT industry. Computers are now ubiquitous in every walk of life, and the number of installed successful applications grows steadily over time. Each installed successful application in a company lasts for a long duration. Consequently, the number of installed applications is much larger than the number of projects focused on developing new applications. While there will always be new applications and systems being developed within companies, the predominance of managing and operating existing applications is likely to continue.
