This surface can change slowly over millions of years, or very quickly. In this lesson, you will learn about fast changes to the Earth's surface that happen in just minutes or hours.

Scientists called geologists have found three big natural events that change the Earth's surface. They are volcanoes, earthquakes, and landslides.

Volcanoes are found in the crust and the mantle. Under the crust is melted rock called magma. Heat and pressure make cracks in the crust, and magma flows up to the surface. When this happens, a volcano erupts and lava flows out.

Lava flows out of a volcano and can be very hot. When it cools, it turns into rock again. When this happens, a volcano erupts and lava flows out.
