How to teach a child to talk. Correct speech development from infant to preschool* . Oleg Nashchubskiy, In the book we will consider in detail many topics related to speech development in children We list just some of the topics that will be described in the book The importance of early speech development A general overview of language stages from infancy to preschool Creation of an environment that stimulates speech development The importance of reading from birth The importance of early communication and its impact on speech development Communication techniques with newborns and infants Games and exercises to stimulate the production of sounds An introduction to phonetic development and the prevention of common pronunciation problems Exercises to develop vocabulary and comprehension How to use everyday activities to teach Strategies for encouraging first words Developing the ability to connect words into sentences Games and exercises to teach basic grammar The importance of correction and encouragement in the learning process Techniques and games to develop storytelling skills How to use books to improve speaking skills The role of music and singing in speech development Practical activities for incorporating music into learning Early detection and overcoming of speech development delays When to seek specialist help Strategies for maintaining interest in learning and conversation The importance of social interaction and play with peers Wise use of technology in stimulating speech development Applications and resources to support learning Laying the foundation for reading and writing The importance of continuing the educational process at home Summing up and parting words for parents for the future The importance of patience consistency and encouragement in the process of speech development Each chapter will contain specific tips strategies games and activities that parents can use daily to stimulate their child s language development The book aims to provide parents not only with theoretical knowledge but also with practical tools to actively participate in the development of their child s speech What we learn and when we learn it: sensitive periods in development Etienne De Villers-Sidani, Virginia Penhune, 2014-11-21 The impact of training or experience is not the same at all points in development Children who receive music lessons or learn a second language before age 7 8 are more proficient as adults Early exposure to drugs or trauma makes people more likely to become addicted or depressed later life Rat pups exposed to specific frequencies from 9 13 days post partum show expanded cortical representations of these frequencies Young birds must hear and copy their native song within 1 2 months of birth or they may never learn it at all These are examples of sensitive periods developmental windows where maturation and specific experience interact to produce differential long term effects on the brain and behavior While still controversial evidence for the existence of sensitive periods has grown as has our understanding of the underlying mechanisms of brain plasticity Behavioral evidence from studies of language psychopathology or vision in humans has been complemented by evidence elucidating molecular gene and hormonal mechanisms in animals It has been proposed that sensitive periods can be both opened and closed by specific experience and that there are multiple overlapping sensitive periods that occur through out development as functions come on line It is also likely that experience dependent behavioral or brain plasticity accrued during one sensitive period can serve as a scaffold on which later experience and plasticity can build Based on current knowledge there are a number of broad questions and challenges to be addressed in this domain these include generating new information about the neurobiological mediators of structural and functional changes proposing models of brain development that will better predict when sensitive periods should occur and what functions are implicated investigation of the interaction between experience during a sensitive period and pre existing individual differences and the relationship between experience during a sensitive period and on going experience The goal of this Research Topic is to bring together scientists in different fields whose work addresses these issues including animal and human developmental neuroscience language and cognitive development education developmental psychopathology and sensory neuroscience
