Boring Postcards:

Boring Postcards USA Martin Parr, 2000-10-18 In Boring Postcards Magnum photographer and postcard enthusiast Martin Parr brought together 160 of the dullest postcards of 1950s 60s and 70s Britain to make a book that was contrary to the conceit of its title both fascinating and extremely funny It was one of those ideas that seemed so obvious that no one could believe it hadn't been done before and it caught the public imagination in a big way In Britain Boring Postcards was discussed everywhere from daytime TV shows to art and design magazines from local newspapers and radio stations outraged that their town should be labelled boring to Time magazine Now Parr has turned his attention to the USA for a new book of Boring Postcards Just as before for a postcard to qualify as sufficiently boring either its composition its content or the characters featured must be arguably boring or the photograph must be absent of anything that might conventionally be described as interesting As the study of postcards becomes a field of academic interest this book offers more than amusement as a folk art recording of the non places and non events of post war America it reveals poignant insights into its social cultural and architectural values

Picturing the Postcard Monica Cure, 2018-12-18 The first full length study of a once revolutionary visual and linguistic medium Literature has died many times this book tells the story of its death by postcard Picturing the Postcard looks to this unlikely source to shed light on our collective modern day obsession with new media The postcard almost unimaginably now produced at the end of the nineteenth century the same anxieties and hopes that many people think are unique to twenty first century social media such as Facebook or Twitter It promised a newly connected social world accessible to all and threatened the breakdown of authentic social relations and even of language Arguing that new media is as much a discursive object as a material one and that it is always in dialogue with the media that came before it Monica Cure reconstructs the postcard's history through journals legal documents and sources from popular culture analyzing the postcard's representation in fiction by well known writers such as E M Forster and Edith Wharton and by more obscure writers like Anne Sedgwick and Herbert Flowerdew Writers deployed uproar over the new medium of the postcard by Anglo American cultural critics to mirror anxieties about the changing nature of the literary marketplace which included the new role of women in public life the appeal of celebrity and the loss of privacy an increasing dependence on new technologies and the rise of mass media Literature kept open the postcard's possibilities and in the process reimagined what literature could be

book presents the cream of photographer Martin Parr's fabled collection of British postcards of the 1950s-1970s. Presents 155 comically dull postcards of places ranging from airport terminals to caravan sites, bus stations, motorways, and housing estates. Tackles with wit and irony such subjects as bad taste, food, the tourist shopping, and the foibles of the British. A unique documentary of British architecture, social life, and identity. Driving Spaces Peter Merriman, 2011-07-22 Peter Merriman traces the social and cultural histories and geographies of driving spaces through an examination of the design, construction, and use of England's M1 motorway in the 1950s and 1960s. A first of its kind academic study examining the production and consumption of the landscapes and spaces of a British motorway. An interdisciplinary approach engaging with theoretical and empirical work from sociology, history, cultural studies, anthropology, and geography. Contains 38 high quality illustrations. Based on extensive original archive work. Post Ex Sub Dis Ghent Urban Studies Team, 2002. Post ex sub and dis these are but a few of the prefixes that have been used to compose neologisms for describing the contemporary cityscape. Terms such as posturban space, postsuburbia, exurbia, and disurbia are part of a dizzying collection of often hotly contested labels. This plethora demonstrates how difficult it has become to name, map, and analyse the cityscape. Urban environments have come to evince a radically chaotic and fragmented structure. This book explores how fragmentation has acquired new meanings and how the urban landscape is constantly being deconstructed and reconstructed. Richly illustrated with works by artists and photographers, the volume contains a series of essays on spatial, social, and cultural issues written by distinguished scholars from an unusual variety of disciplines. Postcards David Prochaska, Jordana Mendelson, 2010. Examines postcards as images that are carriers of text and textual correspondence that circulate images across boundaries of class, gender, nationality, and race. Discusses issues concerning the concrete practices of production, consumption, collection, and appropriation. Reading the Everyday Joe Moran, 2005-11-16. In an ever-growing field of study, this is a major contribution to one of the key areas in cultural studies and cultural theory: the spaces, practices, and mythologies of our everyday culture. Drawing on the work of such continental theorists as Henri Lefebvre, Michel de Certeau, Marc Augé, and Siegfried Kracauer, Joe Moran explores the concrete sites and routines of everyday life and how they are represented through political discourse, news, media, material culture, photography, reality TV shows, CCTV, and much more. Unique in his focus of the under-explored banal aspects of everyday culture, including office life, commuting, traffic, and mass housing, Moran re-evaluates conventional notions of everyday life in cultural studies and shows that analysing such boring phenomena can help make sense of cultural and social change. This book is interdisciplinary in its approach and covers many different areas, including visual culture, cultural geography, material culture, and cultural history, as well as the key areas of cultural studies and sociology. Students from all these subjects will find this clearly written and lively work an invaluable study resource. Postcards of the Night John A. Jakle, 2003. Illustrated with eighty vintage city postcards made between the turn of the twentieth century and through the 1970s, with the emphasis on the first four decades, historical geographer John A. Jakle turns his attention to early twentieth century nocturnal views of America's cities and to the role of the picture postcard in popular culture Postcard images the author writes offered important visual fixes mental templates for visualising cities the vista of a downtown street at night or a bird's eye view of a vividly lit downtown or the dramatic lighting of monuments and other architectural landmarks As a result the popularity and proliferation of the penny postcard influenced how Americans thought about cities as landscape displays

A. Malone, George Shadbolt, John Traill Taylor, William Blanchard Bolton, Thomas Bedding, 1921 Camerawork, 2002 Bodies of Nature Phil Macnaghten, John Urry, 2001-10-19 This book examines the embodied nature of people's experience in and of the modern world It is therefore part of the deep seated turn towards the body However it is partly critical of this development in as much as it affirms that the sociology of the body has downplayed the extent to which the body is located in and involved with nature the countryside the outdoors landscape and wilderness The book argues that bodies in nature are subject to novel complex and contradictory opportunities of freedom and escape surveillance and monitoring The book guides readers through the various ways in which these bodily opportunities and constraints are temporally and spatially organized and managed Transmission, Speaking & Listening, 2002
