more frequent and program analysis was more extensive, standards were still lacking and monitoring tended to be cursory.

SUMMARY

CETA's major objective of institutionalizing employment and training programs in local government has been achieved. Considerable progress has been made in building the capabilities of local units of government to manage manpower programs, but difficult administrative problems remain. Part of the turmoil and chaos of the first 2 years is attributable as much to changes in legislation, irregular funding, and unusual growth patterns as to the unfamiliarity of local governments with the administration of manpower assistance programs.

- On the whole, program administration was better in the second year than in the first, despite excessive turnover of key staff. Lack of experience in conducting programs and inadequate management information systems seriously hampered program management.
- The uncertainty of funding has made orderly planning and management of public service employment programs very difficult.
- The administration of Titles II and VI is under the same organizational roof as that of Title I, although often handled by separate units. Basic decisions, however, are often made outside the CETA establishment.
