Defense Mechanisms in the Counseling Process Arthur J. Clark, 1998-03-24 What causes clients in therapy to resist change? What mechanisms and devices do they use to defend against therapeutic progress? How can a therapist identify and work with such defenses in their clients? Understanding defense mechanisms is essential to understanding clients, managing resistance, clarifying conflicted behavior, and engendering more adaptive functioning. In Defense Mechanisms in the Counseling Process, author Arthur J. Clark discusses various specific defense mechanisms that arise in the course of working with a client in counseling. He presents each mechanism's theoretical origins, psychopathology, and definitions, and then the methods organized according to the three-stage model of the counseling process for processing it through discrete stages. Extensive examples throughout the book from diverse populations illustrate the defense mechanisms themselves as well as the therapeutic change that can result in spite of them. He also provides an integrative case example demonstrating the changes in clients' defenses through the counseling process. Combining a theoretical and practical perspective, Defense Mechanisms in the Counseling Process is ideally suited for professionals and academics in clinical and counseling psychology, psychology, social work, and group work.

Essential Skills and Strategies in the Helping Process Robert E. Doyle, 1992 This book was written with students in mind. The first six chapters may be read independently by students. The information provided in these chapters may be further developed by classroom discussions or supplementary lectures that can go into any of these topics in greater detail. The communication skills discussed in the last four chapters are designed to be used in a skill building course. The exercises in these chapters need to be studied under the direction of a skilled counselor I have tried to present the subject matter in a relatively informal writing style The chapters were pretested with my own students who were asked to provide feedback and pose questions about any concepts that were not completely understood The Personnel and Guidance Journal ,1926
