Sabine Zange

Alienatory Reason:

Art, Alienation, and the Humanities Charles Reitz, 2000-02-03 Illustrates how Marcuse's theory sheds new light on current debates in both education and society involving issues of multiculturalism postmodernism civic education the culture wars critical thinking and critical literacy

Theories of Alienation Christoph Henning, 2024-07-31 Theories of alienation had a long history burgeoned since the 1960s yet almost disappeared in recent decades but in his book Christoph Henning brings these theories back on the agenda to better account for contemporary social pathologies Feelings of estrangement of not feeling at home in the world in one's own body or surroundings are widespread in contemporary societies They go hand in hand with loneliness with a burnout with depression or with anger and hatred But where do they come from what do they signify Henning tracks theories of alienation from three different traditions first a conservative approach from Rousseau to Hartmut Rosa explains alienation with change and is based on nostalgia second a liberal approach from Simmel to Rahel Jaeggi relies on individual autonomy and explains it as a loss of control and third an Aristotelian approach from Humboldt to Marx or British idealism based on theories of flourishing relies on a perfectionist anthropology and critical social theory In doing so Henning vividly reconstructs these traditions with contemporary examples and excursions into the movies Theories of Alienation From Rousseau to the Present shines important new light on this important field of contemporary social philosophy and is very approachable to the general reader

Limits of Intelligibility Jens Pier, 2022-11-01 The chapters in this volume investigate the question of where and in what sense the bounds of intelligible thought knowledge and speech are to be drawn Is there a way in which we are limited in what we think know and say And if so does this mean that we are constrained that there is something beyond the ken of human intelligibility of which we fall short Or is there another way to think about these limits of intelligibility namely as conditions of our meaning and knowing anything beyond which there is no specifiable thing we cannot do These issues feature prominently in the writings of Kant and Wittgenstein who each engaged with them in unique and striking ways Their thoughts on the matter remain provocative and stimulating and accordingly the contributions to this volume address the issues surrounding the limits of intelligibility both exegetically and systematically they examine how they figure in Kant's and Wittgenstein's most significant works and put them in touch with contemporary debates that are shaped by their legacy These debates concern inter alia logically and morally alien thought the semantics and philosophy of negation disjunctivism in philosophy of perception and ethics paraconsistent approaches to contradiction and the relation between art literature and philosophy The book is divided into four parts Part I gives a first assessment of the issues Part II examines limits as they feature in Kant Part III as they feature in Wittgenstein and Part IV suggests some ways in which the questions might be reconsidered drawing upon ideas in phenomenology dialetheism metamathematics and the works of other influential authors Limits of Intelligibility provides insight into a theme that is central to the thought of two of the most important figures in modern philosophy as well as to recent metaphysics philosophy of language philosophy
