Children's Discourse Maya Hickmann, 2002-11-21 This comparative study explores two central questions in the study of first language acquisition What is the relative impact of structural and functional determinants What is universal versus language specific during development Maya Hickmann addresses these questions in three domains of child language reference to entities the representation of space and uses of temporal aspectual markings She provides a thorough review of different theoretical approaches to language acquisition and a wide range of developmental research as well as examining all three domains in English French German and Chinese narratives Hickmann's findings concern the rhythm of acquisition the interplay among different factors syntactic semantic pragmatic determining children's uses and universal versus variable aspects of acquisition Her conclusions stress the importance of relating sentence and discourse determinants of acquisition in a crosslinguistic perspective Children's Discourse will be welcomed by those working in psychology and language related disciplines interested in first language acquisition

Adult-child Discourse of Language-impaired and Normal Children Joyce Leath, 1980

The Discourse of Child Counselling Ian Hutchby, 2007-01-01 This book is an empirical study of naturally occurring interaction between child counselling professionals and young children experiencing parental separation or divorce Based on tape recordings of the work of a London child counselling practice it offers the reader a unique and sustained look inside the child counselling consultation room at the talk that occurs there The book uses conversation analysis against a backdrop of sociological work in childhood and family studies to situate the discourse of child counselling at an interface between the increasing incitement to communicate in modern society the growing recognition of children's social competence and agency and the enablements and constraints of institutional forms of discourse participation Chapters include overviews of recent developments in the sociology of childhood and the sociolinguistics of children's talk conversation analysis and institutional discourse and detailed empirical studies of the linguistic techniques by which counsellors draw out children's concerns about family trauma and the means by which children through talking and avoiding talking either cooperate in or resist their therapeutic subjectification This book will be of interest to readers in counselling psychology and practitioners of child counselling to researchers and advanced students in social psychology sociology and sociolinguistics and to others interested in childhood and family studies

Thompson, 2006      The Role of Context in Children's Use of Discourse Markers Elena Andrea Escalera, 2002      Explanation in Mother-child Discourse Across Contexts Susan Marie Dougherty, 2009 Abstract Home based explanatory discourse supports linguistic and conceptual development and is an important precursor to school based learning This study aimed to increase understanding of this topic by describing the distribution of explanations across five contexts in the home environments of preschool aged children The conversations of five highly educated middle class mothers and their 2 1 2 to 3 year old children were recorded as they read narrative and expository texts viewed educational television played with blocks and ate meals together The transcripts of these conversations were analyzed to determine 1 the characteristics of mothers explanations 2 the characteristics of their children s explanations 3 the ways the mothers provided scaffolds for their children s attempts to explain and 4 the extent to which science concepts were discussed Coding of parent child discussions was based on Beals 1993 nine categories of explanation revised in response to data gathered in this study Three intentional categories in Beals coding scheme were collapsed and two categories identification and event were added The addition of these two categories of explanation afforded a richer picture of how mothers support the linguistic and cognitive development of their children across contexts Explanation types identified in mothers discourse in order of frequency were identification definitional descriptive causal event procedure internal intention and consequence Across the five contexts the children heard an average of 3 2 explanations for every 10 turns spoken by their mothers While certain contexts displayed a greater density of particular explanation types each context offered opportunities for a range of types of explanation Evidence that mothers have different explanatory styles was also found Children s explanations were most often identification and event explanations Mothers supported the children s attempts at explanation by extending their children s utterances providing hints and information and redirecting questions Discussion of scientific concepts was also found across all contexts but most frequently during the reading of expository text The results indicate that a range of home activities support preschool aged children s exposure to explanatory discourse and that those working with families to support early literacy should look beyond traditional book reading tasks as sources of talk that builds children s linguistic and conceptual knowledge
