Age Of Deterrence:

The Age of Deterrence George E. Lowe,1964 Complex Deterrence T. V. Paul,Patrick M. Morgan,James J. Wirtz,2009-09-15 As the costs of a preemptive foreign policy in Iraq have become clear strategies such as containment and deterrence have been gaining currency among policy makers This comprehensive book offers an agenda for the contemporary practice of deterrence especially as it applies to nuclear weapons in an increasingly heterogeneous global and political setting Moving beyond the precepts of traditional deterrence theory this groundbreaking volume offers insights for the use of deterrence in the modern world where policy makers may encounter irrational actors failed states religious zeal ambiguous power relationships and other situations where the traditional rules of statecraft do not apply A distinguished group of contributors here examines issues such as deterrence among the Great Powers the problems of regional and nonstate actors and actors armed with chemical biological and nuclear weapons Complex Deterrence will be a valuable resource for anyone facing the considerable challenge of fostering security and peace in the twenty first century The Role of Arms Control in U.S. Defense Policy United States. Congress. House. Committee on Foreign Affairs,1984 The United Kingdom and Nuclear Deterrence Jeremy Stocker,2013-05-13 In December 2003 the British government announced that within a few years it would need to take decisions about the future of Britain s strategic nuclear deterrent Exactly three years later its plans were revealed in a White Paper The existing Trident system is to be given a life extension which includes building new submarines to carry the missiles costing 15 20 billion Britain has a substantial nuclear legacy having owned nuclear weapons for over half a century The strategic context for the deterrent has changed completely with the end of the Cold War but nuclear weapons retain much of their salience This Adelphi Paper argues that it makes sense to remain a nuclear power in an uncertain and nuclear armed world Given that deterrence needs are now less acute but more complex than in the past the paper asserts that deterrence also needs to be aligned with non proliferation policies which seek to reduce the scale of threats that need to be deterred Somewhat overlooked in current policy are appropriate measures of defence which can raise the nuclear threshold and if required mitigate the effects of deterrence failure It concludes that the government s decisions about the future form of the deterrent are very sensible but cautions that they still need to be integrated into a broader policy that embraces diplomacy deterrence and defence to counter the risks posed by nuclear proliferation An Introduction to Strategic Studies Barry Buzan,1987-09-04 An Introduction to Strategic Studies addresses some of the major questions that govern both international relations and human survival This book provides a comprehensive introduction to the core concepts of contemporary strategic thinking It argues that strategic studies is about the impact of military technology on relations between states and that its specialised contribution must always be seen within the broader context of international economic and political relations State of Doom Barry Scott Zellen,2011-12-22 The book examines Bernard Brodie s strategic and philosophical response to the nuclear age embedding his work within the classical theories of Carl von Clausewitz Deterrence in the Second Nuclear Age Keith B. Payne, 2014-07-11 Keith Payne begins by asking Did we really learn how to deter predictably and reliably during the Cold War He answers cautiously in the negative pointing out that we know only that our policies toward the Soviet Union did not fail What we can be more certain of in Payne's view is that such policies will almost assuredly fail in the Second Nuclear Age a period in which direct nuclear threat between superpowers has been replaced by threats posed by regional rogue powers newly armed with chemical biological or nuclear weapons The fundamental problem with deterrence theory is that it posits a rational hence predictable opponent History frequently demonstrates the opposite Payne argues that as the one remaining superpower the United States needs to be more flexible in its approach to regional powers Arms Control & Disarmament, 1965 Behavioral Science, 1961

Perspectives on Deterrence Paul C. Stern, 1989 This book examines deterrence theory using a multidisciplinary approach to look for evidence of its validity The contributors aim to understand the conditions under which a strong threat of punishment produces either restraint in an adversary or leads to undesired military escalation Critical Masses and Critical Choices Kerry G. Herron, Hank C. Jenkins-Smith, 2006 Examines American attitudes on issues of national and international security Based on over 13 000 in depth interviews conducted over a ten year period Provides surprising insights into public opinion on nuclear deterrence terrorism and other security issues Flexibility in Response? Rob de Wijk, 1989 Social Scientist, 1986 Documents of American Catholic History: 1966-1986 John Tracy Ellis, 1987 Vols 1 2 are reprints Originally published Chicago H Regnery Co 1967 Vol 3 is a new work Includes bibliographical references and indexes v 1 1493 1865 v 2 1866 1966 v 3 1966 1986 Traffic Safety Reform in the United States and Great Britain Jerome S. Legge, 1991 The 1980s saw a renewed concern with highway safety reflected in wide media coverage and new laws aimed at reducing highway deaths and injuries But little is known about the consequences of these reforms Using recent research some his own Jerome Legge examines three recent initiatives that have been studied only in isolation stricter drinking age laws mandated use of seat belts and deterrents to drunk driving Complex Deterrence: Strategy in the Global Age Patrick M. Morgan and James J. Wirtz T. V. Paul, 2010-10-01 Moving beyond the precepts of traditional deterrence theory this ground breaking volume offers insights for the use of deterrence in the modern world where policy makers may encounter irrational actors failed states religious zeal ambiguous power relationships and other situations where long established rules of statecraft do not apply A distinguished group of contributors here examines issues such as deterrence among the great powers the problems of regional and nonstate actors and actors armed with chemical biological and nuclear weapons Complex deterrence will be a valuable resource for anyone facing the considerable challenge of fostering security and peace in the twenty first century Deterrence in the Age of Surprise Air War Air War College, 2014-12-06 This book examines the implications of exponential technological change on the panoply of threats the US Air Force may have to face in the future and how the Air Force should posture itself to best deter those threats Specifically this book examines the changes in the array of threats for which be needed in the future due to the proliferation of disruptive technologies explores the relevance of deterrence theory to both existing and new threats some of which may surpass nuclear weapons in the risk they pose to both the United States and humankind and recommends new ways of applying deterrence theory in order to reduce the risk that new disruptive technologies will be used against the United States or its interests Building on previous Blue Horizons studies this work assumes that science and technology growth will continue and will drive proliferation of advanced and potentially dangerous technologies It posits that the result of rapid advances in nanotechnology biotechnology directed energy space computers and communications technologies may prove to be particularly dangerous These developments span the private sector and many nations 1 Globalization in finance communications education industry trade governance and myriad other areas is facilitating the rapid spread of new technologies among nations groups and individuals 2 Actors in unstable states and terrorists may use these technologies in malevolent ways to directly threaten US national security and that of friends and allies This threat will take the Air Force back to its roots which began in intelligence surveillance and reconnaissance Of principal concern by the year 2035 are threats in six separate areas nuclear weapons attacks in cyberspace directed energy weapons space systems nanotechnology and biotechnology Each of these poses the risk of catastrophic attack to the United States its citizens and its infrastructure Deterring threats posed by nations groups and individuals will require new thinking regarding the application of deterrence theory Fundamentally deterrence theory suggests that actors are deterred from attacking a target if they believe that the risk or cost of retribution outweighs the gains to be achieved by carrying out the attack As such deterrence theory has always contained two primary branches One is deterrence by retribution the cost one can impose on the attacker for either carrying out an attack or making the attempt to do so The other is deterrence by denial the ability to deny an adversary the opportunity to attack or having sufficient resiliency that little is to be gained even if the attack is successful Each of these branches can affect the deterrence calculus This book examines the interplay among the six technology threat areas and how deterrence theory applies Statecraft and Power Christopher C. Harmon, David Tucker, 1994 These essays on strategy war and statecraft have been written during the current reassessment of United States national strategy But they also take strategic thinking back to certain principals and interests which have guided America before during and after the Cold War Co published with The Institute for Public Policy The Challenge of Peace--God's Promise and Our Response Catholic Church. National Conference of Catholic Bishops. Ad Hoc Committee on War and Peace, 1983 Transactions of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science National Association for the Promotion of Social Science (Great Britain), 1876
