A Place for Wonder Georgia Heard, Jennifer McDonough, 2009 In A Place for Wonder Georgia Heard and Jennifer McDonough discuss how to create a landscape of wonder a primary classroom where curiosity creativity and exploration are encouraged For it is these characteristics the authors write that develop intelligent inquiring life long learners The authors research shows that many primary grade state standards encourage teaching for understanding critical thinking creativity and question asking and promote the development of children who have the attributes of inventiveness curiosity engagement imagination and creativity With these goals in mind Georgia and Jennifer provide teachers with numerous practical ways setting up wonder centers gathering data through senses teaching nonfiction craft they can create a classroom environment where student s questions and observations are part of daily work They also present a step by step guide to planning a nonfiction reading and writing unit of study creating a nonfiction book which includes creating a table of contents writing focused chapters using wow words and developing point of view A Place for Wonder will help teachers reclaim their classrooms as a place where true learning is the norm

The Minimalist Program Noam Chomsky, 1995-09-28 The Minimalist Program consists of four recent essays that attempt to situate linguistic theory in the broader cognitive sciences In these essays the minimalist approach to linguistic theory is formulated and progressively developed Building on the theory of principles and parameters and in particular on principles of economy of derivation and representation the minimalist framework takes Universal Grammar as providing a unique computational system with derivations driven by morphological properties to which the syntactic variation of languages is also restricted Within this theoretical framework linguistic expressions are generated by optimally efficient derivations that must satisfy the conditions that hold on interface levels the only levels of linguistic representation The interface levels provide instructions to two types of performance systems articulatory perceptual and conceptual intentional All syntactic conditions then express properties of these interface levels reflecting the interpretive requirements of language and keeping to very restricted conceptual resources The Essays Principles and Parameters Theory Some Notes on Economy of Derivation and Representation A Minimalist Program for Linguistic Theory Categories and Transformations in a Minimalist Framework

Thematic Structure in Syntax Edwin Williams, 1994 This important monograph summarizes rethinks and extends a decade of the author s work on the role assignments the ways in which the roles implied by verbs of a given type play out in terms of position and other syntactic functions The study of theta roles and the locality of theta role assignment leads into many interesting areas of linguistic theory such as scope the ECP X bar theory binding theory and the weak crossover condition Williams s reconstruction thus offers a systematic integration of a remarkably wide range of syntactic phenomena Williams starts by outlining a theory of the clause specifically of the distribution of Nominative Case and Tense He then develops a formalism for the notion of external argument that is used throughout the rest of the book Subsequent chapters review the issues surrounding the syntactic expression of the subject predicate relationship extend the notion of external argument to include NP movement and reanalyze the verb movement constructions as deriving from the calculus of theta roles rather than movement The last chapter distinguishes referential dependence and coreference showing that a general Leftness condition governs the former while the binding theory restated in terms of theta relations governs the latter Edwin Williams is Professor of Linguistics at Princeton University

The Syntax of Subordination Dagmar Haumann, 2011-04-20 This study is concerned with the categorial status of subordinating conjunctions and the internal and external structure of subordinate clauses Starting out from the categorizations of subordinating conjunctions that prevail in recent generative linguistic theory namely complementizers and prepositions and from the division of syntactic categories into lexical and functional ones the author investigates the lexical and grammatical properties of subordinating conjunctions which are held to account for both the distribution and the architecture of subordinate clauses Central to this study is the relation between the category subordinating conjunction the licensing of its projection and the licensing of its complement and specifier position Part I is concerned with subordination in early Generative Grammar the rise of the category C and the categorization of subordinating conjunctions Part II focuses on recent conceptions of phrase structure the inventory of syntactic categories the lexical functional dichotomy and syntactic movement Part III is concerned with the lexical properties of complementizers C prepositions P and a third category of subordinating conjunctions Subcon which conflates properties of Cs and Ps This categorization of subordinating conjunctions is arrived at on the basis of the distribution of the phrases they head and the mechanisms by which these elements license their complement and specifier Cs as typical functional heads license both their complement and their specifier on the basis of feature checking mechanisms Ps as typical lexical heads license these positions by theta marking them Within SubconP the complement is licensed by feature checking as within CP and the specifier is licensed by theta marking as within PP
