Classification and Regression Trees Leo Breiman, Jerome Friedman, R.A. Olshen, Charles J. Stone, 2017-10-19 The methodology used to construct tree structured rules is the focus of this monograph Unlike many other statistical procedures which moved from pencil and paper to calculators this text's use of trees was unthinkable before computers Both the practical and theoretical sides have been developed in the authors study of tree methods Classification and Regression Trees reflects these two sides covering the use of trees as a data analysis method and in a more mathematical framework proving some of their fundamental properties

Classification and Regression Trees, CART Yisheac Yohannes, Patrick Webb, 1999-01-01 Decision Trees and Their Application for Classification and Regression Problems Obinna Chilezie Njoku, 2019 Tree methods are some of the best and most commonly used methods in the field of statistical learning They are widely used in classification and regression modeling This thesis introduces the concept and focuses more on decision trees such as Classification and Regression Trees CART used for classification and regression predictive modeling problems We also introduced some ensemble methods such as bagging random forest and boosting These methods were introduced to improve the performance and accuracy of the models constructed by classification and regression tree models This work also provides an in depth understanding of how the CART models are constructed the algorithm behind the construction and also using cost complexity approaching in tree pruning for regression trees and classification error rate approach used for pruning classification trees We took two real life examples which we used to solve classification problem such as classifying the type of cancer based on tumor type size and other parameters present in the dataset and regression problem such as predicting the first year GPA of a college student based on high school GPA SAT scores and other parameters present in the dataset Classification and Regression Trees Leo Breiman, 1984 On Using Classification and Regression Trees in Machine Learning David Scott

Teegavarapu, 2024-07-20 Missing data is a ubiquitous problem that plagues many hydrometeorological datasets Objective and robust spatial and temporal imputation methods are needed to estimate missing data and create error free gap free and chronologically continuous data This book is a comprehensive guide and reference for basic and advanced interpolation and data driven methods for imputing missing hydrometeorological data The book provides detailed insights into different imputation methods such as spatial and temporal interpolation universal function approximation and data mining assisted imputation methods It also introduces innovative spatial deterministic and stochastic methods focusing on the objective selection of control points and optimal spatial interpolation The book also extensively covers emerging machine learning techniques that can be used in spatial and temporal interpolation schemes and error and performance measures for assessing interpolation methods and validating imputed data The book demonstrates practical applications of these methods to real world hydrometeorological data It will cater to the needs of a broad spectrum of audiences from graduate students and researchers in climatology and hydrological and earth sciences to water engineering professionals from governmental agencies and private entities involved in the processing and use of hydrometeorological and climatological data Description, Application and Evaluation of CART Jean Roy (Professeur),1988

Contributions to Classification and Regression Trees Yuanzhi Li,2017 This dissertation consists of two parts In the first part we introduce the algorithm Multinomial Logistic Regression Tree Logistic regression tree recursively partitions the data and ts a logistic regression at each partition It combines logistic regression and tree model The tree structure of the model can handle the nonlinear features automatically and the node logistic regression model can provide prediction of response class probabilities Previous logistic regression algorithms are designed for binary response data only Here we extend the model to multinomial response data Our algorithm also supports exhaustive search for numerical cut point selection In the second part we compare the prediction accuracy of nine popular regression algorithms on data sets with missing values To handle the missing data we consider two approaches the default method of the algorithm and missing data imputation At low missing rate regression tree GUIDE and M5 achieve the best and at high missing rate tree ensemble GUIDE Forest and Random Forest have the best performance A new method of GUIDE imputation is the best imputation method for most of the regression algorithms in our experiment Description,
