Bill,First Report of Session Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. ODPM: Housing, Planning, Local Government and the Regions Committee,2005 The Committee s report was originally intended to improve the draft Regional Assemblies Bill Cm 6285 ISBN 0101628528 published in July 2004 Although the draft Bill is now unlikely to proceed through Parliament in the near future the report identifies key points which the Government should consider if in the light of the result of the referendum in the North East in November 2004 it decides it wishes to return to the issue of introducing elected regional assemblies The report discusses a range of issues including the powers and resources of regional assemblies their relations with local and central government policy areas such as economic performance skills development transport and housing funding aspects constitutional and electoral issues including the voting system used and stakeholder participation The Committee concludes that any future legislation needs to be more ambitious than the draft Bill to create regional bodies that plastic mulching industrial activities such as petrochemical process pharmaceutical process industrial coating waste incineration coal burning and daily life such as domestic sewage plastic bag use daily waste have greatly contributed to volatile organic compounds heavy metals microplastics and solid wastes pollution The accumulation of volatile organic compounds heavy metals microplastics and solid wastes in air water and land from human sources may pose a high environmental risk to wildlife crops or human health This has attracted more and more attention from the public all over the world It is urgent to conduct in depth research on the air water and land polluted by volatile organic compounds heavy metals microplastics and solid wastes to seek environmentally friendly remedial measures At present there are much basic research technical achievements and practical applications for volatile organic compounds heavy metals microplastics and solid wastes such as physical chemical and biological remediation methods for volatile organic compounds and heavy metals recycling of plastics and other solid wastes etc However due to the characteristics of these pollutants such as diverse species complex sources wide pollution area and serious pollution as well as their special instincts and behaviors in the ecosystems the existing theoretical research and key technologies are still flawed posing a huge challenge to the actual environmental protection work
