

1

First thing first, the key of using various clubs is to familiarize yourself with each club in your bag, and knowing how far you can hit with each of them.

2

The general rule of thumb for irons and wedges is to use the least possible loft angle for the situation at hand. For chips less than 20-feet to the flag, usually 9-iron or wedges will be the correct choice, use this as your benchmark.

3

For longer shots, use middle irons, and for longest possible chips, go as far back to 5- or 4-iron. One thing to keep in mind is that you should use a consistent technique with all your irons.

4

For damp or cold days, use longer irons than your usual. For example, you use 8- instead of the suggested 9-iron.

5

When playing down the wind, use shorter irons and play short of the flag. You can eliminate the backspin issue with this method.

6

One thing to also keep in mind is to understand your own psyche. When you are under pressure or on the other hand, filled with an adrenaline rush, you tend to hit with more swing. Adjust with a shorter iron (9- instead of 8-iron) to counterbalance this. Of course, your habit may vary, and practice makes perfect.
