Blind Fortune:

Blind Fortune Joanna Waugh, 2009-02-01 They say love is blind but Lady Fortuna Morley doesn't believe it. Sightless since birth, she can think of only one reason a gentleman would wed her for the dowry and three thousand a year: her father will provide. She is in London the spring of 1814 to help launch her younger cousin into society but prefers living quietly in the country. The last thing Fortuna wishes is to cross swords with the arrogant Marquess of Granville, Charles Lowden. Lord Granville has decided to take a wife. The bride he has chosen is thirteen years his junior but meets all criteria. What he won't abide is interference from the girl's impertinent cousin, the outspoken and opinionated Lady Fortuna Morley. The woman is determined to thwart the match. Charles is just as determined to charm Fortuna out of her disdain for him. What neither expects in the ensuing battle of wills is to fall in love.

Blindness and Therapy in Late Medieval French and Italian Poetry Julie Singer, 2011 This book argues that late medieval love poets from Petrarch to Machaut and Charles d'Orléans exploit scientific models as a broad framework within which to redefine the limits of the lyric subject and his body. Just as humoral theory depends upon principles of likes and contraries in order to heal, poetry makes possible a parallel therapeutic system in which verbal oppositions and substitutions counter or rewrite received medical wisdom. The specific case of blindness, a disability that according to the theories of love that predominated in the late medieval West foreclosed the possibility of love, serves as a laboratory in which to explore poets' circumvention of the logical limits of contemporary medical theory. Reclaiming the power of remedy from physicians, these late medieval French and Italian poets prompt us to rethink not only the relationship between scientific and literary authority at the close of the middle ages but more broadly speaking the very notion of therapy.

The Multicultural Dictionary of Proverbs Harold V. Cordry, 2015-08-31 All cultures have proverbs that capsulize subjects simply and effectively. Many of these are cross-cultural. For example, according to a Danish proverb: "The greater the fear, the nearer the danger," while a Latin proverb says: "The less there is of fear, the less there is danger." This work includes over 20,000 proverbs from more than 120 languages, nationalities, and ethnic groups. The proverbs are arranged under 1,300 headings, e.g., accidents, divided loyalty, marriage, prosperity, shame, and each includes the nationality, group, or language in which it originated. Comprehensive keyword and subject indexes allow access to the material in multiple ways.
