White Blood Cells

White Blood Cells are an important part of the immune system to fight infections.

What can go wrong?

If your White Blood Cell count is too high, it is a symptom seen in infections, acute inflammatory conditions, as well as Acute and Chronic Leukaemia.

If it is too low, it is known as leucopenia. This can be due to certain drugs, infections (often viral), lack of certain vitamins/ nutrients (Vit B12/folate), or sometimes due to blood disorders such as leukaemia. Low white cells counts could result in lower immunity, affecting the body's ability to fight infections and to heal.

Red Blood Cells

Red Blood Cells are important to transfer oxygen from the lung to the body organs.

What can go wrong?

If your Red Blood Cell count is too high, it can cause conditions such as polycythaemia. If your blood is too thick, there might be risks of blood clots and strokes. In some cases, this could also lead to heart attacks.

If your Red Blood Cell count is too low, it might cause anaemia. Some symptoms include shortness of breath, pallor (pale looking) and fatigue.

Platelets

Platelets are needed to stop bleeding and bruising in the normal human body.

What can go wrong?

If your Platelet count is too high, there is a high risk of blood clots.

If it is too low, there might be a higher chance of bleeding.
