Principles and Forms of Sociocultural Organization Dmitri M. Bondarenko,Gleb V. Aleksandrov,2026-04-07 To show the non linear nature of social evolution it is crucially important to discuss cases from different cultural areas and different historical periods including our time as well as different levels of overall sociocultural complexity This anthology includes chapters that explore case studies covering a wide range of societies of the Old and the New World ranging from ancient to modern contexts Respectively the chapters are based on different kinds of sources archaeological historical anthropological ethnographic and sociological This analysis of pre modern and modern societies sheds valuable light on the variety of ways in which social institutions were developing through time and space and of how these institutions may have fostered social evolution Therefore this publication may enhance our understanding of social evolution at the world system regional and local culture levels via the integration of various kinds of evidence within a unified conceptual framework Societies are systems composed of a great number of various social institutions Societies change as a result of emergence transformation and interaction of institutions As systems of social institutions societies have a fundamental characteristic that can be called a basic principle of societal organization The principle of organization a society embodies depends on the way its institutions are arranged with respect to one another Two basic principles can be distinguished heterarchical at which institutions interact being unranked with respect to one another or can be ranked in different ways and the opposite principle

homoarchival at which institutions interact being rigidly ranked in the only way and have no or very limited potential for being unranked or ranked in other ways Societies of the same level of overall cultural complexity and with the same basic principle of organization can take different specific forms as alternativeness exists not only between but also within the heterarchical and homoarchival macrogroups of societies The division of societies into predominantly heterarchical and homoarchival is a constant fact of human sociocultural history The dichotomy of heterarchy and homoarchy has considerably determined the non linear and alternative nature of the global sociocultural process Transformations in the ways social institutions and their sets societal subsystems are ranked homoarchivaly or heterarchicaly on one hand and changes in the overall sociocultural complexity on the other are two different largely unrelated processes Homoarchy and heterarchy are not evolutionary lines a society can pass from a predominantly heterarchical way of ranking institutions to predominantly homoarchival or vice versa and can do it both with and without a change in level of complexity At any level of overall cultural complexity one can observe both heterarchical and homoarchival societies because an equal level of complexity which makes it possible to solve equally difficult problems societies face can be achieved in various forms on essentially different though intersecting in the history of many societies and regions principles of societal organization

Globalization, Modernity and the Rise of Religious Fundamentalism Dimitrios Methenitis, 2019-06-03 The emergence of religious fundamentalism in a globalized post colonial world poses a significant challenge to the End of History narratives common in academic and non academic literature alike Globalization Modernity and the Rise of Religious Fundamentalism proposes that we must seek new explanations for this phenomenon that recasts the relationship between globalization modernity and religion One model through which this possible is that of a dialectical kaleidoscopic methodology one that applies a variety of theoretical tools and takes a truly multi dimensional perspective Through the overlapping and complementary approaches of systems theory field theory and network theory this book redefined the concepts of globalization modernity and religion itself by challenging the inherent misconceptions of ethnocentric biases It also provides a thorough historical analysis of religious systems from antiquity to the present to show the integration of modern and archaic elements within the structure of religious fundamentalism Interdisciplinary in nature Globalization Modernity and the Rise of Religious Fundamentalism will appeal to students and researchers interested in fields such as geopolitics history of race and ethnicity postcolonialism globalization and sociology of religion

The Scripture on Great Peace Barbara Hendrischke, 2007-01-10 This first Western language translation of one of the great books of the Daoist religious tradition the Taiping jing or Scripture on Great Peace documents early Chinese medieval thought and lays the groundwork for a more complete understanding of Daoism s origins Barbara Hendrischke a leading expert on the Taiping jing in the West has spent twenty five years on this magisterial translation which includes notes that contextualize the scripture s political and religious significance Virtually unknown to scholars until the 1970s the Taiping jing raises the hope for salvation in a practical manner by instructing men and women how to appease heaven and satisfy earth and thereby reverse the fate that thousands of years of human wrongdoing has brought about The scripture stems from the beginnings of the Daoist religious movement when ideas contained in the ancient Laozi were spread with missionary fervor among the population at large The Taiping jing demonstrates how early Chinese medieval thought arose from the breakdown of the old imperial order and replaced it with a vision of a new more diverse and fair society that would integrate outsiders in particular women and people of a non Chinese background World of Patterns Rens Bod, 2022-05-10 A comprehensive account of the methods of knowledge production throughout human history and across the globe The idea that the world can be understood through patterns and the principles that govern them is one of the most important human insights it may also be our greatest survival strategy Our search for patterns and principles began 40 000 years ago when striped patterns were engraved on mammoths bones to keep track of the moon s phases What routes did human knowledge take to grow from these humble beginnings through many detours and dead ends into modern understandings of nature and culture In this work of unprecedented scope Rens Bod removes the Western natural sciences from their often central role to bring us the first global history of human knowledge Having sketched the history of the humanities in his ground breaking A New History of the Humanities Bod now adopts a broader perspective stepping beyond classical antiquity back to the Stone Age to answer the question Where did our knowledge of the world today begin and how did it develop Drawing on developments from all five continents of the inhabited world World of Patterns offers startling connections Focusing on a dozen fields ranging from astronomy philology medicine law and mathematics to history botany and musicology Bod examines to what degree their progressions can be considered interwoven and to what degree we can speak of global trends In this pioneering work Bod aims to fulfill what he sees as the historian s responsibility to grant access to history s goldmine of ideas Bod discusses how inoculation was invented in China rather than Europe how many of the fundamental aspects of modern mathematics and astronomy were first discovered by the Indian Kerala school and how the study of law provided fundamental models for astronomy and linguistics from Roman to Ottoman times The book flies across continents and eras The result is an enlightening symphony a stirring chorus of human inquisitiveness extending through the ages Early Greek Philosophy John Burnet, 1892 Harmsworth History of the World: Ancient nations of the Near East.
