Patten Bradley Merrill Patten, 1925 Living Morphogenesis of the Heart Roger Markwald, Maria De la Cruz, 2012-12-06 The overall scope of this new series will be to evolve an understanding of the genetic basis of 1 how early mesoderm commits to cells of a heart lineage that progresses and irreversibly assemble into a segmented primary heart tube that can be remodeled into a four chambered organ and 2 how blood vessels are derived and assembled both in the heart and in the body Our central aim is to establish a four dimensional spatiotemporal foundation for the heart and blood vessels that can be genetically dissected for function and mechanism Since Robert DeHaan's seminal chapter Morphogenesis of the Vertebrate Heart published in Organogenesis Holt Rinehart Winston NY in 1965 there have been surprisingly few books devoted to the subject of cardiovascular morphogenesis despite the enormous growth of interest that occurred nationally and internationally Most writings on the subject have been scholarly compilations of the proceedings of major national or international symposia or multiauthored volumes often without a specific theme What is missing are the unifying concepts that can make sense out of a burgeoning database of facts The Editorial Board of this new series believes the time has come for a book series dedicated to cardiovascular morphogenesis that will serve not only as an important archival and didactic reference source for those who have recently come into the field but also as a guide to the evolution of a field that is clearly coming of age The Cumulative Book Index, 1930 Early Embryology of the Chick, 1920 The University of Kansas Science Bulletin University of Kansas, 1930 A System of obstetrics v.1, 1888 Barton Cooke Hirst, 1888 Publications of the Faculties University of Minnesota, 1930 The Early Embryology of the Chick B.M.
