Compton, Rauno K. Parrila, 2017-08-15 The use of printed words to capture language is one of the most remarkable inventions of humankind and learning to read them is one of the most remarkable achievements of individuals In recent decades how we learn to read and understand printed text has been studied intensely in genetics education psychology and cognitive science and both the volume of research papers and breadth of the topics they examine have increased exponentially Theories of Reading Development collects within a single volume state of the art descriptions of important theories of reading development and disabilities The included chapters focus on multiple aspects of reading development and are written by leading experts in the field Each chapter is an independent theoretical review of the topic to which the authors have made a significant contribution and can be enjoyed on its own or in relation to others in the book The volume is written for professionals graduate students and researchers in education psychology and cognitive neuroscience It can be used either as a core or as a supplementary text in senior undergraduate and graduate education and psychology courses focusing on reading development

Educational Neuroscience, Constructivist Learning, and the Mediation of Learning and Creativity in the 21st Century Layne Kalbfleisch, 2015-05-28 The advent of educational neuroscience a transdisciplinary exercise emerging from cognitive neuroscience and educational psychology is the examination of physiological processes that undermine support and enhance the capacities to learn and create The physiological underpinnings of learning and creativity each impact human ability and performance and mediate the processes of becoming educated expert and valued Evidence of learning provides support to an ongoing canon process system field or domain while evidence of creativity results in an elaboration or departure from an ongoing canon process system field or domain Educational neuroscience extends a challenge to scholars from multiple contexts to engage in the characterization and exploration of human ability and performance in these realms The role of context both environmental and interoceptive is an integral part of efforts in educational neuroscience and in theories of constructivist learning to contribute ecologically valid insight to the pragmatic processes of learning and creativity Examination at this level of specificity is vital to our ability to educate and support human potential in the 21st century This Research Topic examines the neural basis of cognitive states and processes that influence knowledge and skill acquisition tied to the demonstration of human ability and performance across individual differences and in multiple contexts including STEM learning and the arts

Support for Learning Differences in Higher Education Geraldine Price, Janet Skinner, 2007 Specialist teacher assessors work increasingly in all sectors of British education. As key personnel in higher education institutions they are responsible for conducting essential diagnostic psychometric assessments for students. In its guidance on assessment and identification of students with specific learning difficulties SpLD in higher education the UK government identifies procedures for good practice. This book is a practitioner's guide for specialist teachers working with SpLD students in higher education institutions and provides the background to the practitioner's certificate introduced in 2006. It offers practical suggestions to aid specialist tutors who are supporting and assessing students from all academic fields. It indicates formats for assessments to help specialist tutors comply with the new regulations and helps tutors provide reasonable adjustments for students that do not compromise academic standards.
