Early Medieval:

A History of Early Medieval Europe from 476 to 911 Margaret Deanesly, 1963 God and History in the Early Medieval West Robert A. H. Evans, 2025-08-01 While virtually all early medieval historians wrote about God they did not do so in the same way Rather than taking their comments about God at face value then as has been the case in much work on medieval history writing they are deserving of closer scrutiny with implications not simply for how we understand the key narrative sources for early medieval history but also the cultures in which they originated Seeking to fill this historiographical gap this book explores through the prolific writing of historians in the Carolingian Empire how historians in early medieval societies thought about God and what this meant for themselves and their audiences It argues that although Carolingian historians wrote about God s agency with tremendous literary subtlety while reflecting complex theological ideas and attempting to intervene into challenging political realities in many respects they also broke with the example of early Christian historians from Late Antiquity which demonstrates that writing about God was neither a uniform nor inevitable part of early medieval history writing As well as yielding new insights into the nature of these crucial primary sources this analysis helps to provide an overdue examination of the complex relationship between religion and history writing in early medieval societies The book demonstrates that comments about God cannot be reduced to mere political propaganda or even moralistic encouragements for early medieval Christians to lead better lives Instead it argues that these historians sought to communicate a robust theology of divine activity which was relevant and useful for those involved in the often threatening world of Carolingian public life

The nEU-Med project: Vetricella, an Early Medieval royal property on Tuscany's Mediterranean Giovanna Bianchi, Richard Hodges, 2020-04-20 The nEU Med project is part of the Horizon 2020 programme in the ERC Advanced project category It began in October 2015 and the University of Siena is the host institution of the project The project is focussed upon two Tuscan riverine corridors leading from the Gulf of Follonica in the Tyrrhenian Sea to the Colline Metallifere It aims to document and analyze the form and timeframe of economic growth in this part of the Mediterranean which took place between the 7th and the 12thc Central to this is an understanding of the processes of change in human settlements in the natural and farming landscapes in relation to the exploitation of resources and in the implementation of differing political strategies This volume presents the multi disciplinary research focussed upon the key site of the project Vetricella and its territory Vetricella is thought to be the site of Valli a royal property in the Tuscan march It is the only Early Medieval property to be extensively studied in Italy Located on Italy s Tyrrhenian coast the archaeology and history of this site provide new insights on estate management metal production and wider Mediterranean relations in the later first millennium Apart from reports on the archaeology the finds from excavations and environmental studies three essays consider the wider European historical and archaeological context of Vetricella Future monographs will feature studies by members of the project team on aspects of Vetricella its finds and territory Family, Friends and Followers

Gerd Althoff, 2004-06-03 Political life in the middle ages was influenced heavily by the bonds people had to one another Among these the bonds of kinship friendship and lordship were by far the most important Ritual was also often used to create and strengthen these bonds and conduct and behaviour within social groups was shaped by unwritten rules People bound in these ways had a right to expect help and support from one another Such bonds were both a fact and a necessity of life in the middle ages Over time however these bonds and relationships changed as did the rules and norms which governed them The aim of this book is to document and describe the history of these crucial bonds and the ways in which they shaped political life in Europe in the early and high middle ages

Early Medieval Europe 300-1000 Roger Collins, 1991 The Long Morning of Medieval Europe Jennifer R. Davis, Michael McCormick, 2008 Scholars from Europe and North America convened at Harvard University in 2004 for an interdisciplinary conference aimed at Rethinking the Early Middle Ages What are the issues and techniques of research defining the field today and what will they be tomorrow Godparents and Kinship in Early Medieval Europe Joseph H. Lynch, 1986 The book description for the previously published Godparents and Kinship in Early Medieval Europe is not yet available An Archaeological Study of Human Decapitation Burials Katie Tucker, 2016-02-29 This is an in depth yet accessible study of human decapitation burials in Roman Britain Dr Katie Tucker studied this subject for her doctorate and so is a leading expert in the area Her findings go against conventional views of human decapitation burials of this period which traditionally favour the view of a post mortem removal of the head Instead Katie found the majority of the evidence did not support this theory and so concluded that most decapitations were likely to have been performed prior to death potentially as a result of execution or human sacrifice In order to gain a full insight into the ways in which these burials were formed and the reasoning behind these practices Katie compares the decapitation burials to the burials of the wider Romano British cemetery population In doing this Katie is able to better understand the differences between decapitated individuals and the rest of the population in terms of burial practice demographics and ante mortem health status Decapitation burials are not only confined to the Roman period and so Katie also discusses the context of them in the Neolithic Bronze Age Iron Age Early Medieval Medieval and Post Medieval periods in order to assess whether there is continuity between periods

Texts and Identities in the Early Middle Ages Richard Corradini, 2006 For seven years a collaboration between the Institute for Medieval Studies of the Austrian Academy of Sciences and the Universities of Utrecht Cambridge Leeds and Paris I Sorbonne provided the opportunity for young researchers to discuss and coordinate their work The title of the project and of this volume Texts and identities provides the framework for case studies in different fields of early medieval history They include apparently disparate topics such as historiography and hagiography monastic spaces and memories lay and ecclesiastic legislation as well as liturgy and penance Rather than defining a common field of research the meetings from which these papers have emerged derived their coherence from their common methodological framework This approach combines two elements on the one hand emphasis has been laid on the careful analysis of the transmission of texts and of the manuscript evidence on the other research has focused on the problem of identity or rather of processes of identification including the perception of differences between specific social political and religious communities In the combination of these two approaches the extant texts from the early medieval period are not only seen as mere reflections of ethnic social and cultural identities but also as media that gave meaning to social practices and were often intended to inspire guide change or prevent action directly or indirectly The written texts that have been transmitted to us can be seen as part of a cultural effort to shape the present by means of restructuring the past The often discordant voices of medieval authors allow modern historians to grasp something of the multiplicity of the early medieval world and of the disagreements conflicts idiosyncrasies and individual perceptions among the people who lived in that period Many contributions in this volume propose specific methods for studying changing identities They analyse differences between similar texts over time or specifically changes in texts in the course of their transmission The papers collected in this volume illustrate that texts were integral parts of a world in transformation

Women In Dark Age And Early Medieval Europe c.500-1200

Helen Jewell,2006-10-04

The period 1200 1550 opened in a time of population expansion but went on to suffer the demographically cataclysmic effects of the plague beginning with the Black Death of 1347 51 The period dawned with a confident papacy and the Albigensian crusade against heretics and ended with the Catholic church torn apart by the Protestant Reformation Huge challenges were affecting society in various ways but they did not always affect men and women in the same ways Helen M Jewell provides a lively survey of western European women s activities and experiences during this timeframe The core chapters investigate The function of women in the countryside and towns The role of women in the ruling and landholding classes Women within the context of religion This practical centre of the book is embedded in an analysis of the gender theories inherited from the earlier Middle Ages which continued to underpin laws which restricted women s activity an education system which offered them inferior institutional provision and a church which denied them ministry Three individuals who vastly exceeded these expectations crashing through the glass ceilings of their day are brought together in a fascinating final chapter Combining a historiographical survey of trends over the last thirty years with more recent scholarship this is as indispensable introduction for anyone with an interest in women s history from the late Medieval period through to the Reformation

Legions of Pigs in the Early Medieval West Jamie Kreiner,2020-10-27 An exploration of life in the early medieval

West using pigs as a lens to investigate agriculture ecology economy and philosophy From North Africa to the British Isles pigs were a crucial part of agriculture and culture in the early medieval period Jamie Kreiner examines how this ubiquitous species was integrated into early medieval ecologies and transformed the way that people thought about the world around them In this world even the smallest things could have far reaching consequences Kreiner tracks the interlocking relationships between pigs and humans by drawing on textual and visual evidence bioarchaeology and settlement archaeology and mammal biology She shows how early medieval communities bent their own lives in order to accommodate these tricky animals and how in the process they reconfigured their agrarian regimes their fiscal policies and their very identities In the end even the pig s own identity was transformed by the close of the early Middle Ages it had become a riveting metaphor for Christianity itself The Lives of the Popes in the Early Middle Ages Horace Kinder Mann,1925
