Moving Bodies Debra Hawhee, 2009 This is a sophisticated study of how bodies and language move and are moved by each other Kenneth Burke may be best known for his theories of dramatism and of language as symbolic action but few know him as one of the twentieth century's foremost theorists of the relationship between language and bodies Moving Bodies presents him as a major transdisciplinary theorist of the body Debra Hawhee focuses on Burke's studies from the 1930s 40s and 50s while illustrating that his interest in reading the body as a central force of communication began early in his career and continued to inform his work over more than six decades Burke examined the human body as a participant in thought rather than as the mind's binary Cartesian opposite grappling with notions of physical form as a corporeal intellect the mental and biological interwoven within one life By exploring his extensive writings on the subject alongside revealing considerations of his life and his scholarship Hawhee maps his recurring invocation of a variety of perspectives in order to theorize bodies and communication including music mysticism endocrinology evolution speech gesture theory and speech act theory as well as his personal experiences with pain and illness Hawhee shows that Burke's goal was to advance understanding of the body's relationship to identity to the creation of meaning and to the circulation of language Her study brings to the fore one of Burke's most important and understudied contributions to language theory and she establishes Burke as a pioneer in a field where investigations into affect movement and sense perception broaden understanding of physical ways of knowing

Having a Good Cry Robyn R. Warhol, 2003 Robyn R Warhol's goal is to investigate the effects of readers' emotional responses to formulaic fiction of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries on gendered subjectivity She argues that modern literary and cultural studies have ignored nonsexual affectivity in their inquiries The book elaborates on Warhol's theory of affect and then focuses on sentimental stories marriage plots serialized novels and soap operas as distinct genres producing specific feelings among fans Popular narrative forms use formulas to bring up familiar patterns of feelings in the audiences who love them This book looks at the patterns of feelings that some nineteenth and twentieth century popular genres evoke and asks how those patterns are related to gender Soap operas and sentimentalism are generally derided as effeminate forms because their emotional range is seen as hyperfeminine Having a Good Cry presents a celebration of effeminate feelings and works toward promoting more flexible less pejorative concepts of gender Using a psychophysiological rather than a psychoanalytic approach to reading and emotion Warhol seeks to make readers more conscious of what is happening to the gendered body when we read

Crying Tom Lutz, 2001 This provocative and indispensable book provides a natural and cultural history of our most mysterious and complex human function our ability to shed tears All humans and only humans weep Tears are sometimes considered pleasurable sometimes dangerous mysterious deceptive or profound Tears of happiness tears of joy the proud tears of a parent tears of mourning tears of laughter tears of defeat what do they have in common Why is it that at times of victory success love reunion and celebration the outward signs of our emotions are identical to those of our most profound experiences of loss Why We Cry looks at the many different ways people have understood weeping from the earliest known representation of tears in the fourteenth century B C through the latest neurophysiological research Despite our most common romantic assumptions what this brilliant book tells us is that tears are never pure they are never simple
