Control, Coercion, and Constraint Wolfram Kinzig, Barbara Loose, 2024-12-30 This volume is based on a lecture series that was held during the academic year 2021 2022 at the University of Bonn Its contributors explore the role of religion in overcoming and creating structures of dependency from different disciplines and academic backgrounds The question of the role of religion in justifying perpetuating modifying and abolishing slavery and other forms of strong asymmetrical dependency is still a much debated topic within historical and social sciences The equality of all human beings before God gods or the divine is deeply rooted in religious thought Conversion to one or another religion has therefore often led to critique transformation and even abolition of existing social structures institutions and their corresponding dependencies Yet religious discourse has also been used to justify the subjection of individuals and whole peoples In addition throughout history religious institutions themselves have often mirrored the social hierarchies and inequalities of the surrounding societies Concomitantly practitioners of these religious traditions have created systems of dependency within their own institutional social legal and spiritual structures This volume makes clear that not even the metaphysical world is free of dependencies influential strands of almost all major religious traditions envisage hierarchies of gods angels demons and other metaphysical beings

The role of small and medium agrifood enterprises in food systems transformation: the case of rice processors in Senegal Ilie, E.T., Kelly, S., Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations ,2021-03-22 The objective of this publication is multifold First it aims to learn from small and medium sized agrifood manufacturers about the role they play in food systems transformation in Senegal and the policy reforms required to harness their potential Second and more specifically it gleans lessons from structured interviews with Senegalese rice millers based on their day to day realities highlighting the business creativity used by these firms in order to deal with difficult enabling environments Third the methodology adopts a food systems approach to analyze the target enterprises cross fertilizing different disciplinary perspectives in order to develop evidence for the public sector on integrated policy making that better supports the role of small agrifood enterprises in sustainable transformation Finally the study shares ideas about innovations related to procurement operations logistics finance marketing and sales human resources and strategic partnerships An important contribution of this work is to demonstrate the multidimensional and complex nature of the environment within which agrifood manufacturers do business and the need for the public sector to harness their potential to reduce poverty through off farm employment generation and to improve food security through the sustainable supply of affordable and nutritious food to domestic and export markets
