

The book cover features a photograph of a woman's back, seen from behind. Her dark hair is pulled up. Two hands are placed on her shoulders, one on each side. She is wearing a light-colored, possibly white, top with a zipper down the center. The zipper pull is visible, and the zipper teeth are a mix of dark and light colors. The background is a soft, light blue. The title is printed in white, sans-serif font over the top half of the image.

Accommodating Spouse:

The Two-Body Problem Lisa Wolf-Wendel, Susan B. Twombly, Suzanne Rice, 2004-01-05 Approximately eight of every ten academics have spouses or partners who are working professionals and almost half of these partners are academics as well. In fact, dual career academic couples are so prevalent that the two body problem has become a common way of referring to the situation. Increasingly intense competition to hire the best faculty forces institutions to assist dual career couples in finding suitable employment for the accompanying spouse or partner. The authors of The Two Body Problem examine policies and practices used by colleges and universities to respond to the needs of dual career couples within the economic, legal, and demographic contexts of higher education. Using data from an extensive survey of public and private universities as well as in-depth case studies of institutions representing distinctive approaches to this problem, the authors find that the type of institution, its location, size, governance, mission, and resource availability is a critical factor in determining dual career employment options. The Two Body Problem describes various accommodation models in depth and provides valuable information for college and university administrators responsible for hiring faculty and supporting their performance.

Lawrence Rodgers Researching Black Communities James S. Jackson, Cleopatra Howard Caldwell, Sherrill L. Sellers, 2012-09-14 Experts from a range of disciplines offer practical advice for conducting social science research in racial and ethnic minority populations. Readers will learn how to choose appropriate methods: longitudinal studies, national surveys, quantitative analysis, personal interviews, and other qualitative approaches, and how best to employ them for research on specific demographic groups. The volume opens with a brief introduction to the difficulty of defining a population and designing a research program, and then moves to illustrative examples drawn from the contributors' own studies of Blacks in the United States, the Caribbean, and South Africa. Case studies cover research on the media, mental health, churches, work, marital relationships, education, and family roles.

Family Mobility Catherine Doherty, Wendy Patton, Paul Shield, 2014-08-21 Family mobility decisions reveal much about how the public and private realms of social life interact and change. This sociological study explores how contemporary families reconcile individual members' career and education projects within the family unit over time and space, and unpacks the intersubjective constraints on workforce mobility. This Australian mixed methods study sampled Defence Force families and middle class professional families to illustrate how families' educational projects are necessarily and deeply implicated in issues of workforce mobility and immobility in complex ways. Defence families move frequently, often absorbing the stresses of moving through viscous institutions as private troubles. In contrast, the selective mobility of middle class professional families and their no-go zones contribute to the public issue of poorly serviced rural communities. Families with different social material and vocational resources at their disposal are shown to reflexively weigh the benefits and risks associated with moving differently. The book also explores how priorities shift as children move through educational phases. The families' narratives offer empirical windows on larger social processes such as the mobility imperative the gender imbalance in the family s intersubjective bargains labour market credentialism the social construction of place and the family s role in the reproduction of class structure
