Commodities In Crisis:

Commodities in Crisis Alfred Maizels, 1992 With the dramatic changes in the global political scene many developing countries are re evaluating their economic and political priorities This reappraisal scrutinizes their dependence on specific commodities and the crisis into which this market has been thrown in the last decade This work relates the main theoretical and empirical issues in the collapse in commodity prices since 1980 a major cause of the Third World economic crises to perceived conflicts of interest between developed and developing countries Maizels continues his study by discussing the elements of a new approach to an effective commodity policy for the future He includes coverage of such major problems as the impact of commodity instability on the global economy market structure as well as synthetics and diversification This study will be of interest to academics and students of development economics and international trade as well as to policymakers in developing countries Commodities, Governance and Economic Development under Globalization Machiko Nissanke, George Mavrotas, 2010-01-20 Alfred Maizels work on commodity trade and prices documented trends in a major area of international economic relations This book elaborates the ideas in the tradition of Maizels contributions and discusses and extends these theories in relation to current problems Industrial Digest and Commodities & Finance, 1921

An Introduction to Marx's 'Capital' Ranganayakamma, Karl Marx's Capital is a work that discusses scientifically not only economic and political issues but also the entire process of development of human society Capital consists of 4 volumes The title of the first volume is Process of Production of Capital This contains 8 parts and a total of 21 chapters The title of the second volume is Process of Circulation of Capital This contains 3 parts The total number of chapters is 21 The title of the third volume is Process of capitalist production as a whole This contains 7 parts The total number of chapters is 52 The fourth volume is in the form of three separate volumes each one of which is called a part The common title of all the three parts is Theories of Surplus Value All the three parts contain a total of 24 chapters Each one of these 3 parts has an Addendum All these as a whole constitute Capital This book is an introduction to Marx's Capital Commodity Price Movements and Banking Crises Mr. Markus Eberhardt, Andrea Presbitero, 2018-07-06 We develop an empirical model to predict banking crises in a sample of 60 low income countries LICs over the 1981-2015 period Given the recent emergence of financial sector stress associated with low commodity prices in several LICs we assign price movements in primary commodities a key role in our model Accounting for changes in commodity prices significantly increases the predictive power of the model The commodity price effect is economically substantial and robust to the inclusion of a wide array of potential drivers of banking crises We confirm that net capital inflows increase the likelihood of a crisis however in contrast to recent findings for advanced and emerging economies credit growth and capital flow surges play no significant role in predicting banking crises in LICs Commodity Prices and Development Roman Grynberg, Samantha Newton, 2007-11 Presenting a complete analysis of the issues surrounding commodity prices and development this study provides a number of recommendations and policy prescriptions to address the unique set of development issues faced by countries reliant on only a handful of commodities for export earnings The Review of Economic Statistics, 1924 Capital Karl Marx, 1889

Review of Economic Statistics, 1929 The purpose of the Review is to promote the collection, criticism and interpretation of economic statistics with a view to making them more accurate and valuable than they are at present for business and scientific purposes Commodity-dependent Countries in the COVID-19 Crisis Bernhard Tröster, 2020 The global spread of the corona virus is a massive challenge for countries in the Global South. Beyond the health crisis, many countries face economic turmoil linked to their dependence on commodities. Commodity markets have reacted strongly to the COVID-19 crisis with drastic price movements and changes in production and demand due to the policy measures to contain the pandemic. As a result, commodity-dependent countries face the serious risk that the current multiple and simultaneous crises in health, financial, and commodity sectors mutually reinforce each other and exceed the abilities of commodity-dependent countries for a proper response. The vast majority of low and middle income countries, 102 of 134, are persistently dependent on commodities on their export and import side. This FSE Briefing Paper portrays, therefore, the current commodity price developments and the underlying fundamental drivers in the current crisis, considering the unique changes to supply and demand conditions in the different types of commodities. Most importantly, we note that global commodity prices are largely determined on commodity futures markets. As these futures prices are used as the benchmarks for all other prices set along physical commodity chains, the changing behavior of financial investors in the current crisis plays a crucial role in the current challenges faced by commodity-dependent countries. These changes in commodity sectors have multiple implications for commodity-dependent countries in the Global South. Beyond the risks of short-term shocks, including potential food crises, these countries might have to deal with depressed export earnings and changing global demand patterns as medium to long-term effects of the COVID-19 crisis. Appropriate policy responses should address rapidly the short-term financial constraints of many commodity-dependent countries in the Global South but also support policies and capacities in the public and private sectors to advance structural transformation of these countries. However, the stable economic conditions required to implement these measures depend on the stability of commodity prices. It is therefore necessary to reopen the debate on the functioning of global commodity markets and pricing, which revolves around financial commodity markets. The Millennium Development Goals Fantu Cheru, Colin Bradford Jr., 2013-07-18 This volume provides an up-to-date and detailed tour d'horizon of the exciting diversity of new proposals and mechanisms currently being discussed in order to raise the necessary financial resources to make the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals a reality by 2015. If the MDGs to halve global poverty and significantly improve the conditions of life of the world's poor are to be met on schedule, putting in place the requisite funding is an essential component. The economists in this volume, from WIDER, UNDP, and other leading institutions, have contributed their analyses as part of the Helsinki Process on Globalisation and Democracy, a high level multi stakeholder initiative to develop new approaches to global problem solving a global economic agenda and human security Key resource flows examined include ODA foreign direct investment remittances by migrants commodity export prices and new ideas to secure sustainable debt relief including SDRs debt cancellation revaluation of IMF gold reserves debt arbitration and other proposals The statistically rich analyses are presented in the context of the complicated trends in global inequality the incidence of poverty and the impacts of globalisation The editors conclude with a thought provoking set of ideas about the political requirements for effective global economic governance aimed at achieving the MDGs that the world community set itself at the start of the new millennium The empirical data in this volume and survey of key new ideas for resource mobilisation will be invaluable to all those concerned with global economic governance including scholars diplomats NGO lobbyists and students studying development economics
