Low Vision Gordon E. Legge, 2006-03-03 Do you have low vision Do you know someone with low vision One out of every five people who live into their eighties will encounter vision loss Some may grow up with healthy vision and then experience vision loss from macular degeneration glaucoma or some other eye disease later in life Others may be born with an inherited or congenital condition that results in low vision such as albinism or retinopathy of prematurity Most people with vision loss have useful remaining vision we call it low vision But what can they see What is the impact of low vision on their daily lives Put it simply what s it like to live with low vision Low vision is any form of vision impairment not correctable by glasses or contacts resulting from eye disease or injury Low vision is a broad spectrum lying between total blindness and normal vision The number of people with low vision is rising rapidly as our population ages with conservative estimates ranging upward from seven million in the United States to hundreds of millions worldwide Despite its high prevalence there is little understanding of low vision among the general public and even in the medical community Gordon Legge is a leading vision scientist who has devoted more than forty years to research on low vision He has low vision himself providing him with a unique perspective on the science and its implications In the book he describes the diverse nature of low vision how it is measured and characterized and its impact on daily experience By understanding the science behind these experiences we will all better understand the challenges and possibilities of life with low vision Dark Sighted Steve Anderson, 2004-11-01 Dark Sighted is just one of the names used to define a Wampanoag youth who is an emerging shaman It would seem that he can see better in the dark than most people can see in broad daylight It is 1620 the English have come to North America to stay and his people are the first Native Americans to have sustained contact with the Puritan colonists To his face most people call him Mole He alone seems to be the only one who really understands the threat posed by the English to his people and their entire way of life Mole is the weaponless warrior who must not shed another person s blood He helps fend off traditional enemies such as the Narragansetts the attack of a vengeful ghost and the crippling influence of a manipulating Wampanoag sorcerer and traitor Dark Sighted is a true Native American hero Enjoy his story The Blind in History and Society: Wisdom vs. Despair Mehmet Emin Demirci, This book will examine all aspects of the relationship between the blind and the rest of society within the framework of the attitudes that represent a most productive area of social psychology The reader will learn that historic figures did not consider their blindness a hindrance to their achievements be they famous literary personalities or Nobel Prize Laureate The lives of outstanding blind persons such as Democritus al Maarri D hring Rodrigo Dal n Borges Ostrovsky and even Ray Charles will be examined while placing blindness and the blind at the center of social relationships utilizing rich historical presentations and comprehensive analysis This book will be of interest to many professionals educators historians social scientists and general readers International Ice Observation and Ice Patrol Service in the North Atlantic Ocean ,1916 The Hunterian Lectures on Colour-vision and Colour-blindness Frederick

Walsh,2012-12-06 Let us then consider for a moment the world as described by the physicist It consists of a number of fundamental particles which appear bound by certain natural laws which indicate the form of their relationship_ Now the physicist himself who describes all this is in his own account himself constructed of it He is in short made of a conglomeration of the very particulars he describes no more no less bound together by and obeying such general laws as he himself has managed to find and to record Thus we cannot escape the fact that the world we know is constructed in order and thus in such a way as to be able to see itself This is indeed amazing Not so much in view of what it sees although this may appear fantastic enough but in respect of the fact that it can see at all But in order to do so evidently it must first cut itself up into at least one state which sees and at least one other state which is seen In this severed and mutilated condition what ever sees is only partially itself We may take it that the world undoubtedly is itself i e is indistinct from itself but in any attempt to see itself as an object it must equally undoubtedly act so as to make itself distinct from and therefore false to itself In this condition it will always partially elude itself Experimental Psychology: Students' manual. pt. 2.
