participation rights of the disabled child with regard to health education, home life and relationships highlighting ways in which these rights are safeguarded and promoted throughout the EU as well as exploring the factors that put these rights at risk. Finally, this groundbreaking text analyses whether disabled children's needs for assistance in order to realise their participation rights result in fewer opportunities to participate or in an increase in support in order for them to be able to do so.

Professional Collaboration with Parents of Children with Disabilities Louise Porter, Susan McKenzie, 2000-10-23. The work of professionals with children with disabilities affects the children's family while events at home affect what professionals can achieve with the children. This text describes how professionals can form collaborative relationships with the parents of the children in their care to optimise the children's development and to enable both family members and professionals to work in the children's interests. It describes experiences of families who have a child with a disability and takes a new look at old assumptions that disability necessarily has a negative effect on families or that families themselves are in need of therapy simply by virtue of having a child with additional needs. This text offers practical insights and guidelines for action by teachers, occupational therapists, physiotherapists, speech pathologists and psychologists. It is a practical text that enables practitioners to offer a high quality service to children while supporting the family in its role of nurturing their child with special needs.

Resources for Educating Children with Diverse Abilities Penny Low Deiner, 2005. This text will help students move from identifying the annual goals for a child to embedding these goals in the regular classroom routine. It is set up to provide information and then teach how to apply this information in a practical setting.

Lessons from My Child Cindy Dowling, Neil Nicoll, Bernadette Thomas, 2013-10. Every expectant parent dreams of having a healthy perfect baby. But for some, those expectations are shattered forever with the arrival of a disabled child. Long cherished hopes must now be set aside as these parents begin to deal with a new, unwelcome reality and take the first tentative steps on a long and challenging life journey. Lessons from my Child is a collection of stories gathered from parents of special needs children from around the world. In their own words, these parents speak openly and honestly about raising a child with intellectual or physical disabilities: the sleepless nights, the long periods of sadness, the tiny triumphs and the ongoing battle to ensure that their child assumes his or her rightful place in the world. The stories are grouped into chapters that reflect the main stages of many parents' journeys as they move from grief, denial and anger to a point where they can accept their situation and perhaps see their child's disability as embodying a profound life lesson. Each chapter begins with an expert psychological commentary on what parents may be experiencing at that stage. These accounts from parents allow rare insights into the challenges of their world and reveal the extraordinary rollercoaster of emotions many face daily. What emerges is a testament to human determination and a powerful reaffirmation of the strength of love.

Young Children with Special Needs Stephen R. Hooper, 2009.

Undoing Whiteness in Disability Studies Sana Rizvi, 2021-08-26. This book offers a nuanced way to conceptualise South Asian Muslim families' experiences of disability within the UK. The book adopts an intersectional lens to engage with personal narratives on mothering disabled children negotiating home school relationships and developing familiarity with the complex special education system The author calls for a re envisioning of special education and disability studies literature from its currently overwhelmingly White middle class discourse to one that espouses multi ethnic and multi faith perspectives The book positions minoritised mothers at the forefront of the home school relationship who navigate the UK special education system amidst intersecting social inequalities The author proposes that schools and both formal and informal institutions reformulate their roles in facilitating true inclusion for minoritised disabled families at an epistemic and systemic level Lessons from My Child Cindy Dowling,Neil Nicoll,Bernadette

Thomas,2013-08-01 Every expectant parent dreams of having a healthy perfect baby But for some those expectations are shattered forever with the arrival of a disabled child Long cherished hopes must now be set aside as these parents begin to deal with a new unwelcome reality and take the first tentative steps on a long and challenging life journey Lessons from my Child is a collection of stories gathered from parents of special needs children from around the world In their own words these parents speak openly and honestly about raising a child with intellectual or physical disabilities the sleepless nights the long periods of sadness the tiny triumphs and the ongoing battle to ensure that their child assumes his or her rightful place in the world The stories are grouped into chapters that reflect the main stages of many parents journeys as they move from grief denial and anger to a point where they can accept their situation and perhaps see their child s disability as embodying a profound life lesson Each chapter begins with an expert psychological commentary on what parents may be experiencing at that stage These accounts from parents allow rare insights into the challenges of their world and reveal the extraordinary rollercoaster of emotions many face daily What emerges is a testament to human determination and a powerful reaffirmation of the strength of love Students with Disabilities and Special Education ,2006
