Totalitarian Communication Kirill Postoutenko, 2010 Totalitarianism has been an object of extensive communicative research since its heyday already in the late 1930s such major cultural figures as George Orwell or Hannah Arendt were busy describing the visual and verbal languages of Stalinism and Nazism After the war many fashionable trends in social sciences and humanities ranging from Begriffsgeschichte and Ego Documentology to Critical Linguistics and Critical Discourse Analysis were called upon to continue this media centered trend in the face of increasing political determination of the burgeoing field Nevertheless the integration of historical sociological and linguistic knowledge about totalitarian society on a firm factual ground remains the thing of the future This book is the first step in this direction By using history and theory of communication as an integrative methodological device it reaches out to those properties of totalitarian society which appear to be beyond the grasp of specific disciplines Furthermore this functional approach allows to extend the analysis of communicative practices commonly associated with fascist Italy Nazi Germany and Soviet Union to other locations France United States of America and Great Britain in the 1930s or historical contexts post Soviet developments in Russia or Kyrgyzstan This in turn leads to the reevaluation of the very term totalitarian no longer an ideological label or a stock attribute of historical narration it gets a life of its own defining a specific constellation of hierarchies codes and networks within a given society Journal of Social Studies Research, 2011
