James Edward Cowell Welldon

About Writing:

Writing about Writing Elizabeth Wardle, Doug Downs, 2019-09-16 Since its initial publication Writing about Writing has empowered tens of thousands of students to investigate assumptions about writing and to explore how writing works. It does so by making writing itself the subject of inquiry. Unique to Wardle and Downs' approach, the text presents threshold concepts about writing—central ideas that writers need to understand in order to progress. As they come to a deeper understanding of these threshold concepts, students are able to transfer their understanding to any writing situation they encounter. This new edition has been refined and improved based on input from instructors using the text. Now with more explicit instruction to support academic writers, a new Part One explains the value of investigating writing, introduces threshold concepts, and the notion of transfer. Details of genre and rhetorical reading are offered as a guide for conducting writing studies research at a level appropriate for undergraduates. The readings chapters have been updated and streamlined, and as in past editions, they are supported with introductions, scaffolded questions, and activities. An extensive Instructor's Manual by teacher-trainer Matt Bryan provides support for teaching with a writing about writing approach. All the Words Kristen Tate, 2020-02-10 If you read one book about writing every week for a year, what would you learn? Thanks to the self-publishing revolution and events like National Novel Writing Month, the genre of writing craft books has exploded in recent years. Book editor Kristen Tate set out to read and review one writing advice book each week for a year, from classics like E. M. Forster's Aspects of the Novel and Anne Lamott's Bird by Bird to newer works like Jane Alison's Meander Spiral Explode and Jessica Brody's Save the Cat Writes a Novel. What she discovered was a dizzying array of approaches to writing: plotters who know even the smallest details about characters before they write; a word pantsers who blithely dive right into a draft without a plan; anti-adverb crusaders and advocates for complex sentences; and always, that the best way to learn is to read the kinds of books you want to write. All the Words is also a meditation on the challenges and pleasures of starting and sustaining a weekly practice of reading, thinking, and writing. It's an optimistic, encouraging book that will motivate you to keep reading and most importantly, keep writing. How To Talk About Writing Barbara Turner-Vesselago, 2019-07-01 With insight and clarity, Barbara Turner Vesselago distills the essentials of How To Talk About Writing into six revolutionary discoveries. This book provides invaluable advice for all who long to respond constructively to writers who seek their input but who don't know how or where to begin. Seasoned writing mentors and editors will be inspired to abandon old paradigms of editorial criticism. Those new to giving feedback will find straightforward tips, easy to comprehend and instantly rewarding to apply. Barbara Turner Vesselago is the author of two successful writing books and a mentor to hundreds of published authors worldwide. Informative and user-friendly, this is a vital guide for writers' groups, university seminars, and even for frank and informal one-on-one discussions between friends. Talk About Writing Jo Mackiewicz, Isabelle Thompson, 2014-09-25 Talk about Writing: The Tutoring Strategies of Experienced Writing Center Tutors offers a book-length empirical study of the discourse between experienced tutors and student writers in satisfactory conferences The study uses a research driven iteratively tested framework to help writing center directors tutors writing program administrators rhetoric and composition researchers first year composition instructors and others interested in talk about writing to systematically analyze tutors talk and to use that analysis to train new tutors The book strives toward two main goals to provide an analytical research and assessment tool the coding scheme that other researchers can use to understand writing center tutor talk and to provide a close empirical analysis of experienced tutor talk that can facilitate tutor training The study details tutors use of three categories of tutoring strategies instruction cognitive scaffolding and motivational scaffolding at macro and microlevels and results in practical recommendations for improving tutor training
