Autumn Tale:

Mabel Cheung Yuen-Ting's An Autumn's Tale Stacilee Ford, 2008-04-01 This study of An Autumn's Tale argues that Hong Kong films are a window into understanding the shared pasts and ongoing connections between Hong Kong and other globalized cities Viewed through the lens of transnational American Studies the film sheds important insights on both Hong Kong and U S history culture and identity Through this important film from a woman director the author explores the way Hong Kong and the U S have been and continue to be connected through flows of people ideas and events that make their impact known on both sides of the Pacific The book reminds readers of the importance of seeing Hong Kong films as cultural texts that address historical events socio economic shifts and the impact of those events on individual lives With its focus on migration and migrants An Autumn's Tale especially benefits from the transnational American studies perspective that Dr Ford brings to her examination This exciting new field draws from the best of many disciplinary perspectives as well as interdisciplinary perspectives in cultural and postcolonial studies with an eye towards understanding how national identity is both fluid and resilient even in these global times The book is readable and teachable for those looking to understand connections between the U S and Asia during the closing years of the twentieth century during a dynamic period the 1980s in both Hong Kong and New York

Never Coming to a Theater Near You Kenneth Turan, 2005-11-01 It is in the nature of today's movie business that while Hollywood blockbusters invade every megaplex smaller quality films often don't get screen time Fans of finer films have to count on catching up with them on video and DVD but even the most hard core devotees have trouble remembering what sounded good when a film was originally released Never Coming to a Theater Near You will remedy that situation This selection of renowned film critic Kenneth Turan's absorbing and illuminating reviews now revised and updated to factor in the tests of time point viewers toward the films they can't quite remember but should not miss. Moviegoers know they can trust Turan's impeccable taste. His eclectic selection represents the kind of sophisticated adult and entertaining films intelligent viewers are hungry for. More importantly, Turan shows readers what makes these unusual films so great, revealing how talented filmmakers and actors have managed to create the wonderful highs we experience in front of the silver screen. Five French Filmmakers: Renoir, Bresson, Tati, Truffaut, Rohmer. Essays and Interviews. As its title indicates, a collection of essays about followed by interviews with five of France's major movie directors from the silent period, the early part of Jean Renoir's career through the New Wave and beyond, even to the present in the films of Eric Rohmer. Most critics would agree that these five men are among the most important, if not the most important, in the history of French cinema, which means of course that they play a significant role in the history of world cinema as well. Moreover, there are echoes of Renoir's work in Francois Truffaut's, even as there are of Robert Bresson in Rohmer. The great Jacques Tati himself is evidence of Bresson's dictum that the soundtrack invented silence for he made all of his comedies otherwise filled with silence during the sound period. Five French Filmmakers then is the macrocosmic French cinema in microcosm. And all the more so because this book is introduced by the seminal French theorist and critic Andre Bazin, 1918-1958, who in 1957 wrote an essay translated here by me for the very first time, titled Fifteen Years of French Cinema, which serendipitously spans the period from Renoir's sound pictures all the way up to the start of the New Wave. Bazin naturally talks about all the important directors in addition to Renoir, Bresson, Tati, Truffaut, and Rohmer, working or starting their careers from 1942 to 1957, which is precisely why I have included his piece; indeed, placed it at the start of Five French Filmmakers. The Publishers Weekly, 1892. The Story of the University of Edinburgh During Its First Three Hundred Years
