Community Based Systems Of Long Term Care:

Community-Based Systems of Long-Term Care Rick T. Zawadski,2014-04-23 An enlightening review of the successes and failures of several federally funded community based projects that offered elderly persons an alternative to nursing home care Policymakers caregivers and students of public administration and gerontology must read this valuable book

Shaping Long-Term Care in Emerging Asia Vasoontara S. Yiengprugsawan,John Piggott,2022-12-15 Countries are facing increasing life expectancy and a shrinking family size and in effect this may escalate demands for medical and supportive services The role of families in providing informal care will remain important However the simultaneous decline in the supply of informal caregiving caused by changes in family structure and higher female labour market participation necessitate the expansion of the public role in care provision This book analyses the challenges of long term care LTC policy development and implications from advanced LTC systems and a current trajectory in emerging economies in Asia The book approaches the subject through comparative analysis on what works and what does not to provide insight into public policy options for sustainable LTC provision and financing mechanisms How the countries adopt different approaches to health and social systems towards LTC development could provide important insight and perspectives into policy options in the region This book aims at academics policymakers and practitioners in health social and aged care services and could also be used as a teaching resource for undergraduate students in health and social sciences and postgraduate programs in public health epidemiology social demography gerontology and nursing The book will be of interest to a wider audience not only on social and health consequences of population ageing but also health and social policy relating to older persons

Long-term Care in Oregon John V. Lambert,2004 Oregon is a recognized leader in home and community based care and has more than 20 years of experience in moving long term care clients from institutional settings to home and community based settings In 2002 82 per cent of Oregon s Medicaid long term care clients were served in the community Additionally Oregon was the only state in the nation whose spending for institutional care was less than half of the state s total Medicaid long term care spending in 2000 with only 37 2 per cent spent on institutional care compared to the national average of approximately 70 per cent Oregon officials recognize that with the aging population and increasing cost they may need to rethink the design of their current system They hope to incorporate a concept of bounded choice where a person s wishes are considered within the boundaries of service capacity and fiscal constraints

Community-Based Long-Term Care Judith Ann Miller,1991-03 Detailed information on innovative models of community based long term care for possible replication or demonstration by other communities is presented in this book It provides data on a broad range of programmes including case management medical and social support services homemaker chore personal and companion services adult day care hospices living arrangements and emergency services

Long-term Care in Florida John V. Lambert,2004 Florida has the largest proportion of elderly in the nation 2 8 million persons are over age 65 representing 17 6% of its total population The dramatic rise in the number of persons age 65 and over in Florida over the next 20 years estimated to total 26 3% of total population will further stretch the already limited resources of the state Aware of the pressing demand for long term care services well into the 21 century policymakers in Florida have begun seriously to review options for improving financing and delivery of long term care for the frail elderly and persons with disabilities Federal and state Medicaid spending in Florida was 2 6 billion in FY2001 and 30 5% of Medicaid spending was for long term care In FY2001 75 3% of total Medicaid spending was for institutional care Slightly less than 25% of Medicaid spending was channeled towards home and community based services Although institutional care dominated Medicaid spending there has been slow but steady expansion of home and community based services funding both through the use of Medicaid s waiver programs as well as significant support through state sources Among the major issues facing long term care in Florida are the fragmentation of long term care services among state and local agencies an imbalance in financing that favors institutional care rather than home and community based care shortage of health care workers and well trained staff throughout the long term care and disparities in availability of services across the state
